Commending Opera on the James.

Agreed to by the House of Delegates, January 14, 2015

Agreed to by the Senate, January 15, 2015

WHEREAS, music is the most ancient and fundamental form of art by which the human spirit strives to express its mystical intuition of the harmonies of the cosmos; and

WHEREAS, the literary drama arose, most perfectly in the Classical period of Ancient Greece, as the form of art with which to articulate in language the oppositions of comedy and tragedy experienced in human community and also, emphatically, the oppositions of comedy and tragedy, joy and sorrow, as they are experienced within the human heart; and

WHEREAS, the fusion of these art forms—of sound and word, of melody and text—is found in all the cultures of antiquity and again most perfectly in the staged dramas and their accompanying choruses in the works of Classical Greece; and

WHEREAS, it was during the re-engagement with Classical forms that characterized the Renaissance that the Italians, and foremost among them the younger artists of Florence, conceived the modern (or "new-era") form of art that we now know as opera; and

WHEREAS, this marriage of musical composition and text—of lyric and libretto, voice and verse, dance and design—complementing and arising from dramatic action, has for four centuries established opera among the highest of all artistic expressions; and

WHEREAS, Opera on the James was incorporated in 2005 to bring to a large area of Virginia, centered in Lynchburg, the inimitable experiences of the live performance of operatic masterworks; and

WHEREAS, in the decade since its founding, Opera on the James has earned recognition and support from the National Endowment for the Arts, Virginia Commission for the Arts, Opera America—by which Opera on the James is recognized as a Level Four Professional Company—The Greater Lynchburg Community Trust, the Easley Charitable Trust, and the Lynchburg Office of Economic Development; and

WHEREAS, Opera on the James in 2011 launched the Tyler Young Artist Program, which features a quartet of aspiring professional singers selected through nationwide auditions and a master coach and which has since performed annually for more than 5,000 audience members from a wide range of communities, thus fulfilling the hopes of the program's founders, Allen and Jane Tyler of Lexington; and

WHEREAS, Opera on the James has prepared an ambitious 10th anniversary season of major performances, including La Bohème (Puccini), Gala Opera Cabaret, and The Marriage of Figaro (Mozart), as well as programs including an opera film series, lectures, concerts, school visits, a library tour, and shows for children and their families such as "Random Acts of Culture" and surprise performances arranged by "flash mob" performers, while also doubling the Tyler Young Artist Program with two sessions, one in the autumn and one in the spring; and

Agreed to by the Senate, January 29, 2015

WHEREAS, Americans of Japanese ancestry from the Hawaii Provisional Infantry Battalion (the 100th Infantry Battalion) were shipped from the Hawaiian Islands to California, and through their demonstrated performance, helped convince the President and the War Department to reopen military service to 14,000 Nisei, many of whom were drafted into military service from internment camps where they and their families were incarcerated; and

WHEREAS, the 100th Infantry Battalion was eventually made an integral part of the 442nd Regimental Combat Team (RCT), collectively became known as the Go For Broke Regiment, and fought with distinction in Italy and France despite suffering extremely heavy combat and non-combat casualties; and

WHEREAS, the members of the Go For Broke Regiment earned 21 Congressional Medals of Honor, 29 Distinguished Service Crosses, one Distinguished Service Medal, over 550 Silver Stars, 22 Legion of Merit Medals, 15 Soldier Medals, more than 5,300 Bronze Stars, and over 4,000 Purple Hearts; and

Agreed to by the Senate, February 24, 2015

WHEREAS, Virginia law permits an insurer issuing or delivering a policy of motor vehicle insurance in the Commonwealth to use credit information contained in a consumer report as one factor for underwriting, tier placement, or rating an applicant or insured if certain disclosure and other requirements are met; and

WHEREAS, the insurance industry has asserted that actuarial studies illustrate that an individual's ability to manage his financial affairs is a predictor of insurance claims, that scores based on a person's credit history help insurers differentiate between lower and higher insurance risks, and that individuals who have a poor credit history are more likely to file a claim; and

WHEREAS, a Federal Trade Commission study released in 2007, in which more than two million automobile policies were examined, found that while credit-based insurance scoring was an effective predictor of risk and is useful in setting premiums to match the level of risk, it lacked sufficient evidence to explain the correlation between claims and credit history; and

WHEREAS, it has been asserted that provisions authorizing insurers to use credit-based insurance scores when setting premiums for a motor vehicle insurance policy are improper because the practice is not based on a plausible relationship between the characteristics of a class and the hazard insured against, that the use of credit-based insurance scores is unfair because credit scores may be affected by factors that cannot be controlled by the consumer, that the use of credit scores is a proxy to rating based on race or income, and that credit-based insurance scores can be manipulated and therefore are arbitrary; and

WHEREAS, it is not intuitively obvious that an individual's credit history should be permitted to be used as a factor in determining the premiums for motor vehicle insurance, and factors such as an individual's driving record and other data derived from operating a motor vehicle may be more reliable predictors of the actual risk proximate to an insurance policy; and

WHEREAS, a study of whether the use of credit history in setting motor vehicle insurance costs is appropriate could increase public understanding of the issue; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the House of Delegates, the Senate concurring, That the Bureau of Insurance be requested to study the use by insurers of an insured's or applicant's credit information in connection with underwriting motor vehicle insurance policies.

In conducting its study, the Bureau of Insurance shall (i) examine §§ 38.2-2212, 38.2-2213, and 38.2-2234 of the Code of Virginia to determine if those provisions unfairly burden motor vehicle insurance policyholders; (ii) determine whether the use of consumer credit information, rather than relying on the insured's or applicant's driving record and other factors proximately related to risks of operating a motor vehicle, in setting insurance premiums and tier ratings is appropriate; and (iii) determine whether the use of consumer credit information in setting insurance premiums and tier ratings discriminates against poorer or younger people who either have had challenges with credit or have no credit history.

Technical assistance shall be provided to the Bureau of Insurance by the Department of Motor Vehicles. All agencies of the Commonwealth shall provide assistance to the Bureau of Insurance for this study, upon request.

The Bureau of Insurance shall submit a report of its findings and recommendations to the Chairmen of the House Committee on Commerce and Labor and the Senate Committee on Commerce by October 1, 2016.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 635

Requesting the Department of Taxation to study the performance of the communications sales and use tax. Report.

Agreed to by the House of Delegates, February 9, 2015

Agreed to by the Senate, February 24, 2015

WHEREAS, in 2006 the General Assembly enacted legislation to impose a communications sales and use tax on consumers beginning January 1, 2007, which restructured the local taxation of communications services; and

WHEREAS, the communications sales and use tax changed the local taxation of communications services by replacing several local taxes and fees that were imposed at widely varying rates with a uniform five percent state sales and use tax on such services and a monthly fee of $0.75 on both landline and mobile telephone service; and

WHEREAS, in addition to achieving statewide uniformity, a major objective of this tax restructuring was to ensure that competing forms of communications services were taxed equally to avoid having public policy inadvertently create competitive advantages and disadvantages; and

WHEREAS, in order that the tax restructuring was initially revenue-neutral to localities, the revenues from the communications sales and use tax have always been distributed proportionally on the basis of the amount that each locality collected in fiscal year 2006 from the local communications services taxes and fees that were eliminated with the adoption of the state communications sales and use tax; and

WHEREAS, it was anticipated that the total taxes collected from the communications sales and use tax would grow over time, but after eight years that growth has not been significant; and

WHEREAS, communications technology, consumer habits, industry billing practices, and the populations of some Virginia localities have all changed rapidly during the eight years that the tax has been imposed; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the House of Delegates, the Senate concurring, That the Department of Taxation be requested to study the performance of the communications sales and use tax.

In conducting its study, the Department of Taxation shall assemble an advisory panel comprising representatives of local governments and affected segments of the communications industry. With the assistance of the advisory panel, the Department shall (i) evaluate the overall performance of the communications sales and use tax, (ii) determine whether competing communications services are being taxed on an equal basis, (iii) identify any communications services that are receiving a competitive advantage by not being taxed, and (iv) determine whether the tax is structured such that it will apply to new methods of communications.

All agencies of the Commonwealth shall provide assistance to the Department of Taxation for this study, upon request.

The Department of Taxation shall complete its meetings by November 30, 2015, and shall submit to the Governor and the General Assembly an executive summary and a report of its findings and recommendations for publication as a House or Senate document. The executive summary and report shall be submitted as provided in the procedures of the Division of Legislative Automated Systems for the processing of legislative documents and reports no later than the first day of the 2016 Regular Session of the General Assembly and shall be posted on the General Assembly's website.

WHEREAS, the Commonwealth's Medicaid program has become increasingly complex as coverage has expanded to include services related to long-term care, behavioral health, and developmental disabilities; and

WHEREAS, elderly Virginians and Virginians with disabilities represent a minority of enrollees in the Medicaid program but account for the majority of expenditures for medical assistance services and generally receive services through a fee-for-service rather than a managed care system; and

WHEREAS, a review of the eligibility process, particularly for long-term care services, could lead to strategies that strengthen the integrity of the program, improve efficiencies, and ensure that limited financial resources are directed to the individuals and families who most require assistance; and

WHEREAS, in light of budgetary pressures facing states across the nation, promising models of care and administrative processes have been implemented to lower costs associated with medical assistance services while maintaining and improving patient outcomes; and

WHEREAS, a comprehensive and analytical review of the Medicaid program should build upon and not duplicate the knowledge and findings from completed studies; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the House of Delegates, the Senate concurring, That the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission be directed to study the Commonwealth's Medicaid program. In conducting its study, the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission shall review (i) the processes used to determine eligibility, including the financial eligibility screening process for long-term care services, whether asset sheltering could be further prevented and asset recoveries improved, and the effectiveness of existing fraud and abuse detection and prevention efforts; (ii) whether the most appropriate services are provided in a cost-effective manner; (iii) evidence-based practices and strategies that have been successfully adopted in other states and could be used in the Commonwealth; and (iv) other relevant issues, and make recommendations as appropriate.

Technical assistance shall be provided to the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission by the Office of the Secretary of Health and Human Resources and the Department of Medical Assistance Services. WHEREAS, the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1965 officially abolished the National Origins Formula and substituted annual hemispheric caps of 170,000 people from the Eastern Hemisphere and 120,000 from the Western Hemisphere, with no more than 20,000 from one nation; and

WHEREAS, the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1965 also included provisions for immigrants to enter the country outside of the numerical limits, such as the ability for family members of recent immigrants to enter the country; and

WHEREAS, the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1965 is now considered one of the most important statutes of the 20th century, along with the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Voting Rights Act of 1965, and the Social Security Amendments of 1965; and

Commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

Agreed to by the House of Delegates, February 4, 2015

Agreed to by the Senate, February 19, 2015

WHEREAS, prior to and in the immediate aftermath of the American Civil War, the right to vote was the privilege of white males; not until the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution on March 30, 1870, was the right to vote made the law of the land with the words, "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude" and "The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation"; and

WHEREAS, during Reconstruction, a record number of African Americans were elected to federal, state, and local office; although the United States Constitution afforded certain protections to American citizens, numerous strategies, including literacy tests, poll taxes, inconvenient office hours for voter registration, intimidation, reprisals for registering to vote and voting, and violence were used to restrict the right to vote for African Americans; and

WHEREAS, following Reconstruction, few African Americans in the South voted between 1870 and 1965 due to the growing virulence of overt racism and the spread of Jim Crow legislation; and

WHEREAS, on May 17, 1954, the historic Supreme Court decision in Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka, 347 U.S. 483 (1954), which struck down the doctrine of "separate but equal," acted as a catalyst for the Civil Rights Movement that ultimately forced the nation to address African American disenfranchisement; and

WHEREAS, in 1964, the Twenty-fourth Amendment to the United States Constitution was ratified to prohibit states from using the poll tax to deny African American citizens the right to vote; nevertheless, on March 7, 1965, in Selma, Alabama, peaceful marchers protesting the disenfranchisement of African Americans were brutally attacked, beaten, and tear-gassed, and the shock waves of this horrific event, known as "Bloody Sunday," reverberated around the nation and created support for the Voting Rights Act of 1965; and

WHEREAS, the Voting Rights Act of 1965 was signed into law by President Lyndon B. Johnson on August 6, 1965, ending decades of voter-qualification and literacy tests and other illegal barriers to African American suffrage; and

WHEREAS, the Voting Rights Act of 1965, perhaps the single most effective civil rights legislation in the history of Congress, codifies and effectuates the Fifteenth Amendment's permanent guarantee that, throughout the nation, no person shall be denied the right to vote on account of race or color; and

WHEREAS, although the right to vote is guaranteed by the Fifteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution and racial discrimination in voting is prohibited, and notwithstanding the repeated extensions of the law by Congress, each year since the passage of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, racial minorities remain concerned that their right to vote would not be protected or would otherwise be impeded; and

WHEREAS, African Americans and other citizens should be encouraged to educate their progeny concerning the tremendous sacrifices and inordinate amount of time and energy given to overcome obstacles and racial animus to achieve their civil rights; and

WHEREAS, commemoration of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 on the fiftieth anniversary of its passage reminds us of the compelling need to protect and ensure the rights, freedoms, and liberties endowed by our Creator to which all mankind is entitled; and

WHEREAS, it is appropriate that after enduring centuries of systematic resistance to racial equality in every realm, African Americans should be encouraged to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the passage of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, and all citizens should be exhorted to exercise their right to vote without fear, restraint, or interference; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the House of Delegates, the Senate concurring, That the fiftieth anniversary of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 be commemorated; and, be it

RESOLVED FURTHER, That the Clerk of the House of Delegates transmit a copy of this resolution to the executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Virginia State Chapter; Barbara R. Commending H. V. Traywick, Jr.

Agreed to by the House of Delegates, January 16, 2015

WHEREAS, it is the task of an author, in Samuel Johnson's view, "to teach what is not known, or . . . to let new light in upon the mind," so that readers may "take a second view of things hastily passed over, or negligently regarded"; and

WHEREAS, an author may "turn over half a library to make one book"—as again Dr. Johnson observed; and

WHEREAS, H. V. "Bo" Traywick, Jr., has mastered more than half a library in producing a major new work on the Sesquicentennial of the War Between the States, Empire of the Owls; and

WHEREAS, among those commending H. V. Traywick, Jr.'s, work, Frank E. Eakin, Ph.D., professor of Jewish and Christian studies at the University of Richmond, has observed that "Traywick has enabled the unique but often silenced voice of the South to be heard. . . . Letting individuals of the [War] period speak for themselves is crucially important, for it both challenges long held perceptions and serves to redeem those often falsely castigated . . ."; and

WHEREAS, H. V. Traywick, Jr., the son of the late H. V. Traywick, Sr., and his widow, Flo Traywick, of Lynchburg, was graduated from E. C. Glass High School and in 1967 was graduated from Virginia Military Institute with a degree in civil engineering and a commission in the United States Army; and

WHEREAS, H. V. Traywick, Jr., is a combat veteran of the Vietnam War, having served first with the 82nd Airborne Division and subsequently as commander of an engineer company, earning the Bronze Star; and

WHEREAS, a devoted and prodigious reader, H. V. Traywick, Jr., more recently earned a master's degree in liberal arts from the University of Richmond, with a focus on war and cultural revolution; and

WHEREAS, through his father's line, H. V. Traywick, Jr., is descended from Lieutenant John Lampkin Crute, who fought during the Revolutionary War as a lieutenant in the 4th Virginia Regimental Continental Line commanded by Abraham Buford, surviving "Buford's Massacre" inflicted by the British General Banastre Tarleton at Hanging Rock, South Carolina; and

WHEREAS, H. V. Traywick, Jr., is the great-grandson of the Reverend Joseph Benjamin Traywick, who served as a private in the 6th North Carolina Regiment under General Jubal Early of Lynchburg, participating in the battles of Cold Harbor, Lynchburg, Monocacy, Washington, and Third Winchester, only to be captured at the Battle of Fisher's Hill, subsequently surviving confinement to a Union prison camp; and

WHEREAS, H. V. Traywick, Jr., is the great-great-nephew of Joseph Crute, owner with his wife of Clifton, the home in Buckingham County that Union General Ulysses S. Grant expropriated for his headquarters on the evening before the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia on April 9, 1865; and

WHEREAS, it was a daughter of the Crutes who, on the fateful evening before the surrender by the Confederate Army commanded by General Robert E. Lee, and though a mere toddler, switched General Grant on his boots, exclaiming, "Look, Papa! I can whip the Yankees!"; and

WHEREAS, drawing upon his own experiences of war and cultural revolution, drawing upon a rich and even heroic lineage, and drawing, too, upon a vast reservoir of records bequeathed to us by those who lived the history of a bygone era, H. V. Traywick, Jr., has, in Empire of the Owls, presented Virginia readers with a wealth of original source material on "The Tragic Era" of 1861-1865; now, therefore, be it

WHEREAS, "the needs of the soul" adumbrated by the philosopher-saint Simone Weil begin with rootedness in enduring traditions as the sole guarantor of ordered life and livelihood, hence of political order; and

WHEREAS, for these reasons and more, the Southside is famed for breeding men and women fierce alike in their loyalties and enmities and unyielding in the defense of their liberties; and

WHEREAS, George W. Abbitt fought continuously through the war with Company B of the 46th Virginia Infantry, rising by the Spring of 1865 to the rank of captain; and

WHEREAS, Captain George W. Abbitt was awarded a field promotion to colonel for bravery in saving the life of General Henry A. Wise—formerly Governor of Virginia—in the bloody Battle of Sailor's Creek near Farmville on April 6, 1865; now, therefore, be it

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 218

Requesting the Department of Education to study the feasibility of implementing a program in the Commonwealth to track teacher turnover by developing exit questionnaires and other means. Report.

Agreed to by the Senate, February 25, 2015

Agreed to by the House of Delegates, February 24, 2015

WHEREAS, America's schools are struggling with a growing teacher dropout problem that is draining resources, diminishing teaching quality, and undermining our ability to close the student academic achievement gap; and

WHEREAS, high teacher turnover adversely affects public education in the Commonwealth while accountability for costs and reasons for teacher turnover go unreported to taxpayers and members of the General Assembly; and

WHEREAS, the National Commission on Teaching and America's Future (NCTAF) estimates that the annual cost of public school teacher turnover could be over $7.3 billion nationwide; and

WHEREAS, this new estimate is significantly higher than the most recent estimate of $4.9 billion in annual costs presented in a report by the Alliance for Excellent Education in 2005 and takes into account recent increases in the size of the teacher workforce and the rate of teacher turnover; and

WHEREAS, the NCTAF estimate, which is based on the cost generated by teachers who leave their school or district during a given year, does not include (i) the district's cost for teachers who move from school to school within a district in search of a better position or (ii) any federal or state investments that are lost when a teacher leaves the profession. Accordingly, if all of these costs were taken into account, the true cost to the nation would be far in excess of $7 billion; and

WHEREAS, the attrition rate among public school teachers has grown by 50 percent over the past 15 years. Nationally, the annual teacher turnover rate has risen to 16.8 percent, while in urban schools the annual teacher turnover rate is over 20 percent, and in some schools and districts the teacher dropout rate is actually higher than the student dropout rate; and

WHEREAS, in 1994, former U.S. Secretary of Education Richard W. Riley warned the nation that we would need to hire two million teachers within 10 years to offset the retirement of teachers of the "Baby Boom" generation. Over the next decade, we exceeded that goal by hiring approximately 2.25 million teachers, but during that same decade 2.7 million teachers withdrew from public education, over 2.1 million of whom left the profession before their expected age of retirement; and

WHEREAS, the Commonwealth has reported the retirement of record numbers of teachers, including individuals who choose to retire before reaching full retirement age; and

WHEREAS, on average, teachers today do not remain in the profession as long as previous generations of teachers did, and the attrition rate among new teachers has increased by more than 40 percent during the past 16 years; and

WHEREAS, because our school divisions have historically relied on a steady supply of new teachers, virtually no school division in the country has systems in place to track or control the teacher turnover rate; in the absence of systems of measurement, our school divisions have no way of knowing how much money they are losing, the caliber of teachers they are losing, or which schools are suffering the most adverse consequences of turnover; and

WHEREAS, because the odds of young teachers departing the profession are 184 percent higher than those of middle-aged teachers, the customary practice of continually hiring new teachers does not provide a reliable solution to the staffing challenges confronting our school divisions and undermines our efforts to improve teaching effectiveness; as the attrition rate of new teachers steadily increases, the country continues to pursue recruitment practices that place underprepared, inexperienced individuals alone in the classroom and often in the most challenging schools and classrooms; and

WHEREAS, it is worth noting that the increase in teacher turnover in the mid-1990s came at the same time that school divisions throughout the country increased efforts to expand the pool of potential teachers via alternative pathways into the profession, and, ironically, although the influx of more new teachers increased the speed of the revolving door into the teaching profession, the new teachers did not stabilize the teaching workforce and teaching quality in high-need schools did not measurably improve; and

WHEREAS, our leaders in public education are in need of clear, current, and accurate data on teacher turnover and its costs in formats that make it possible to analyze, manage, and control those costs as a first step toward reducing the turnover rate among our teachers and in order to make sound investments in teaching quality; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the Senate, the House of Delegates concurring, That the Department of Education be requested to study the feasibility of implementing a program in the Commonwealth to track teacher turnover by developing exit questionnaires and other means.

In conducting its study, the Department of Education shall consider and make recommendations regarding (i) an exit questionnaire for teachers separating from service or choosing early retirement that includes reasons for leaving as a function of school climate, comparative salaries of neighboring school divisions, job demands as a reflection of teacher time, nonteaching duties, student behavior, classroom management, autonomy in the classroom, opportunities for growth and improvement, and health and family considerations in conjunction with (ii) use of the NCTAF Teacher Turnover Cost Calculator and its associated background information to estimate the dollars spent on teacher turnover for a specific school or school division in the Commonwealth or enable school leaders to design and conduct their own detailed teacher turnover cost analyses.

All agencies of the Commonwealth shall provide assistance to the Department for this study, upon request.

The Department shall complete its meetings by November 30, 2015, and shall submit to the Governor and the General Assembly an executive summary and a report of its findings and recommendations for publication as a House or Senate document. The executive summary and report shall be submitted as provided in the procedures of the Division of Legislative Automated Systems for the processing of legislative documents and reports no later than the first day of the 2016 Regular Session of the General Assembly and shall be posted on the General Assembly's website.

WHEREAS, on May 6, 1776, in response to a recommendation of the Continental Congress meeting in Philadelphia that the colonies draft documents necessary for the creation of new governments, the fifth Virginia Convention was convened in Williamsburg; and

WHEREAS, § 62.1-11 of the Code of Virginia stipulates that the right to the use of water or to the flow of water from any natural stream, lake, or other watercourse is limited to what may be reasonably required for the beneficial use of the public and that the intent of the Commonwealth is to maintain flow conditions to protect instream beneficial uses and public water supplies for human consumption; and

WHEREAS, Virginia has a complex water system that includes many aquifers, nine major watersheds, and 52,232 miles of rivers and freshwater streams with a total combined flow of 22.5 billion gallons per day; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Environmental Quality issues water protection permits for surface water and groundwater withdrawals, and it has reported potential risk to the water supply, including groundwater, given changes in population and demand for water for industrial, recreational, and residential use; and

WHEREAS, recent withdrawals of groundwater in eastern Virginia may have contributed to topographical and hydrological changes, including lower water tables, land subsidence, and higher risk of saltwater contamination of groundwater; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Environmental Quality has appropriated approximately $40 million annually for water protection functions, including planning, permitting, and compliance; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the Senate, the House of Delegates concurring, That the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission be directed to study Virginia's water resource planning and management.

In conducting its study, the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission shall (i) assess the extent to which groundwater and surface water consumption is unsustainable, the potential effects of any unsustainable consumption, and the risk of overconsumption in the future; (ii) assess the effectiveness of the state's permitting process for groundwater and surface water withdrawals; (iii) assess the effectiveness of state and local water resource planning, particularly with regard to groundwater, including the role state and local plans play in water withdrawal permitting; (iv) examine the adequacy of current funding and staff levels for managing Virginia's water resources; (v) consider the need for strategies and practices to preserve or increase the amount of groundwater and surface water available for future consumption; and (vi) review any other issues and make recommendations as appropriate.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 273

Requesting the Department of Environmental Quality to study the projected health benefits of the proposed federal Clean Power Plan in comparison with the projected health benefits of existing regulations. Report.

Agreed to by the Senate, February 25, 2015

Agreed to by the House of Delegates, February 24, 2015

WHEREAS, for many years the federal Clean Air Act has strictly regulated pollution by ozone and particulate matter in order to protect air quality; and

WHEREAS, the Clean Air Act continues to require the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to revise the existing air quality regulations periodically to protect public health; and

WHEREAS, the EPA recently offered new rules for coal-fired power plants in the form of a proposed Clean Power Plan (the Plan); and

WHEREAS, as a central justification for the Plan, the EPA projects reductions in ozone and particulate matter, leading to air quality improvements; and

WHEREAS, the EPA asserts that the health benefits resulting from such air quality improvements will exceed the costs of the Plan to consumers, the power industry, and the economy; and

WHEREAS, whatever reductions in ozone and particulate matter are projected to result from the Plan appear to be unrelated to the Plan's stated purpose of addressing climate change; and

WHEREAS, the EPA appears to be attributing to the Plan a number of health benefits that would occur in any case as a result of ongoing enforcement and revision of existing air quality regulations; and

WHEREAS, the EPA Regulatory Impact Analysis (RIA) for the Plan, referring to the National Ambient Air Quality Standards (NAAQS), acknowledges: "However, it is possible that some costs and benefits estimated in this RIA may account for the same air quality improvements as estimated in the illustrative NAAQS RIAs"; and

WHEREAS, if the EPA is claiming the same health benefits under two different sets of regulations, its effort to attribute future pollution reductions to the proposed Plan amounts to "double counting"; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the Senate, the House of Delegates concurring, That the Department of Environmental Quality be requested to study the projected health benefits of the proposed federal Clean Power Plan in comparison with the projected health benefits of existing regulations.

In conducting its study, the Department of Environmental Quality shall analyze, and consider other analyses of, the projections for ozone and particulate matter reductions in the Plan and (i) determine the accuracy of such projections and the likelihood that such projections will lead to air quality improvements; (ii) compare projections of the national cost of the Plan to the health benefits projected to result from the Plan and complete a cost-benefit analysis; (iii) determine the likelihood that the health benefits attributed to the Plan by the EPA would arise in the absence of the Plan; and (iv) determine the extent to which the EPA uses otherwise-expected benefits to public health as a justification for the Plan.

All agencies of the Commonwealth shall provide assistance to the Department of Environmental Quality for this study, upon request.

The Department of Environmental Quality shall complete its meetings by November 30, 2015, and shall submit to the Governor and the General Assembly an executive summary and a report of its findings and recommendations for publication as a House or Senate document. The executive summary and report shall be submitted as provided in the procedures of the Division of Legislative Automated Systems for the processing of legislative documents and reports no later than the first day of the 2016 Regular Session of the General Assembly and shall be posted on the General Assembly's website.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 274

Directing the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission to update its 2006 study of the impact of regulations on Virginia's manufacturing sector. Report.

Agreed to by the Senate, February 2, 2015

Agreed to by the House of Delegates, February 17, 2015

WHEREAS, Senate Joint Resolution No. 360 (2005) directed the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission (JLARC) to evaluate the total cost of compliance by Virginia manufacturers with state and federal environmental, economic, workplace, and tax regulations and to compare the cost of regulatory compliance borne by Virginia manufacturers with the costs of regulatory compliance borne by manufacturers in other Mid-Atlantic and Southern states; and

WHEREAS, the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission completed its study in November 2006 (Senate Document No. 18) and estimated that Virginia manufacturers spent between $923 million and $3.49 billion in 2005 in complying with state and federal regulations, which averages between $3,121 and $11,791 per employee as estimated by JLARC; and

WHEREAS, the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission study also concluded that Virginia's manufacturing sector lost approximately 66,000 jobs between 2000 and 2005; and

WHEREAS, while the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission concluded that Virginia's regulations do not greatly expand upon federal regulations, it is crucial for the economic vitality of Virginia's manufacturers that this remains the case; and

WHEREAS, updating the research and analysis performed by the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission in 2005 would provide General Assembly members with more current information for use in crafting regulatory policies in Virginia; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the Senate, the House of Delegates concurring, That the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission be directed to update its 2005 study of the impact of regulations on Virginia's manufacturing sector.

In conducting its study, the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission shall (i) estimate the current costs to Virginia manufacturers to comply with federal and state regulations and provide an explanation of how current costs differ from costs evaluated in 2005; (ii) evaluate the degree to which Virginia expands upon federal regulations; (iii) review major actions taken by state agencies since 2005 that have either increased or decreased the costs of regulatory compliance for Virginia manufacturers; (iv) compare the costs of regulatory compliance by industry sectors in Virginia, including manufacturing; and (v) to the extent data is available, compare the costs of regulatory compliance borne by Virginia manufacturers with the costs of regulatory compliance borne by manufacturers in other Mid-Atlantic and Southern states.

All agencies of the Commonwealth shall provide assistance to the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission for this study, upon request.

The Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission shall complete its meetings for the first year by November 30, 2015, and for the second year by November 30, 2016, and the Director shall submit to the Division of Legislative Automated Systems an executive summary of its findings and recommendations no later than the first day of the next Regular Session of the General Assembly for each year. Each executive summary shall state whether JLARC intends to submit to the General Assembly and the Governor a report of its findings and recommendations for publication as a House or Senate document. The executive summaries and reports shall be submitted as provided in the procedures of the Division of Legislative Automated Systems for the processing of legislative documents and reports and shall be posted on the General Assembly's website.
