SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 251

Directing the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission to study the removal of certain books from public school libraries. Report.

Agreed to by the Senate, January 29, 2025
Agreed to by the House of Delegates, February 20, 2025

WHEREAS, the libraries in the Commonwealth's public schools are an important source of learning and exploration for students in the Commonwealth; and

WHEREAS, the books in circulation in the libraries of the Commonwealth's public schools are selected and curated by professionally trained school librarians and media specialists; and

WHEREAS, there are times at which some parents of public school students object to the inclusion of certain books in public school libraries while other parents support or approve the inclusion of such books in public school libraries; and

WHEREAS, § 22.1-16.8 of the Code of Virginia was enacted by the 2022 Session of the General Assembly for the purpose of directing the Department of Education to adopt model policies, and each school board to adopt policies consistent with but that may be more comprehensive than such model policies, for ensuring the parental notification of any instructional material that includes sexually explicit content, as that term is defined in applicable law, and to provide parents the opportunity to request their children be provided, as an alternative, nonexplicit instructional material; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Education adopted the model policies required pursuant to § 22.1-16.8 of the Code of Virginia in August of 2022, which focused on books used in the classroom and specifically clarified that any books contained in public school libraries would, under such policies, be considered "instructional material" only if students were required to read such books for completion of an assignment or as a part of an academic or extracurricular educational program; and

WHEREAS, some school divisions subsequently removed books from circulation in public school libraries based on the school division's determination that such books contained sexually explicit content, in accordance with § 22.1-16.8 of the Code of Virginia, or based on the school division's determination that other content contained in such books was objectionable; and

WHEREAS, some of the decisions by school divisions to remove certain books from public school libraries were made upon the recommendation of "challenge committees," consisting of parents of students in the school division and school librarians or other media specialists, while in other cases, such decisions were made without any recommendation of a school librarian or media specialist and were, instead, made upon the direction of a school board, individual school board members, individual school principals, division superintendents, or other school administrators; and

WHEREAS, the variations in procedure, process, and standards for the removal of certain books from public school libraries by school divisions across the Commonwealth presents significant questions relating to compliance with § 22.1-16.8 of the Code of Virginia and the protection of the opportunities for learning and intellectual exploration created by public school libraries; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the Senate, the House of Delegates concurring, That the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission be directed to study the removal of certain books from public school libraries. The Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission shall focus its study on any books removed from public school libraries after July 1, 2020, based on certain content included in such books.

In conducting its study, the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission shall survey each of the 135 school divisions in the Commonwealth to identify (i) which school divisions removed any books from a library in any of its public schools on the basis of certain content contained therein after July 1, 2020; (ii) for each removed book identified pursuant to clause (i): (a) the title, author, and any other identifying information; (b) the fiscal year of removal; (c) the name of the school from whose library such book was removed; (d) whether it was removed upon the recommendation of a "challenge committee" and, if not, whether it was removed at the direction of the school board or one or more school board members, a school principal, a division superintendent, or another school administrator; (e) how the review was initiated, the role of the school's librarian or media specialist in the removal process, and which, if any, other school board employees were involved in the removal process and the role each individual played; and (f) if § 22.1-16.8 of the Code of Virginia or a policy adopted in accordance therewith was used to justify such removal; (iii) which school divisions have appointed a committee or other body to review the content of books currently contained in or proposed book purchases for inclusion in public school libraries and, if so, whether (a) such committee or body includes a [school] librarian or media specialist employed by the school division and (b) the meetings of such committee or body are advertised and open to the public; and (iv) in consultation with any relevant state agencies, what resources are available at the state level to support school administrators in making decisions relating to the removal of books from public school libraries.

Technical assistance shall be provided to the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission by local school divisions in the Commonwealth. All agencies of the Commonwealth shall provide assistance to the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission for this study, upon request.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 253

Establishing a joint subcommittee to study the consolidation and scheduling of general elections in Virginia. Report.

Agreed to by the Senate, February 20, 2025
Agreed to by the House of Delegates, February 20, 2025

WHEREAS, periodic popular elections give the electorate its voice in government and these electoral decisions are the foundation of representative democracy; and

WHEREAS, Virginia is one of just four states in the United States of America with elections held in the "off cycle" meaning odd-numbered years when neither a presidential or congressional election takes place; and

WHEREAS, a general election is held each November in the Commonwealth for either federal offices, statewide offices, General Assembly offices, constitutional offices, or local offices; and

WHEREAS, Virginia's off-year state elections may have been a historical accident due to the ratification of the Constitution of Virginia in 1851; such elections contributed to the Commonwealth having some of the lowest voter turnouts in America during the 20th Century; and

WHEREAS, this cycle of elections, campaigning, and politics is practically continuous in the Commonwealth of Virginia, likely leading to increased voter apathy and reduced voter turnout; and

WHEREAS, the costs of administering annual elections are significant and are borne largely by local governments; and

WHEREAS, consolidating Virginia's state and local elections and holding such elections in even-numbered years would likely realize significant savings of tax dollars, while also encouraging voter interest and participation; and

WHEREAS, according to the Virginia Public Access Project, the amount of money spent campaigning for state offices has dramatically increased over the past decade and a half with the total spending in gubernatorial elections increasing from $40,975,989 (2009) to $56,861,988 (2013) to $66,166,935 (2017) to $137,551,127 (2021); the total spending in state senate elections increasing from $37,544,148 (2011) to $42,576,066 (2015) to $56,183,148 (2019) to $112,239,884 (2023); and the total spending in House of Delegates elections increasing from $26,133,578 (2011) to $36,023,755 (2013) to $30,737,173 (2015) to $46,560,922 (2017) to $68,077,424 (2019) to $81,436,494 (2021) to $94,866,001 (2023); and

WHEREAS, transitioning to the federal election cycle would likely reduce the need to raise campaign contributions due to the efficiencies gained by overlapping political operations; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the Senate, the House of Delegates concurring, That a joint subcommittee be established to study the consolidation and scheduling of general elections in Virginia. The joint subcommittee shall consist of 13 members that include eight legislative members, four nonlegislative citizen members, and one ex officio member. Members shall be appointed as follows: three members of the Senate, at least two of whom shall be members of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, to be appointed by the Senate Committee on Rules; five members of the House of Delegates, at least three of whom shall be members of the House Committee on Privileges and Elections, to be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Delegates in accordance with the principles of proportional representation contained in the Rules of the House of Delegates; two nonlegislative citizen members, one of whom shall be a current or former member of a board of supervisors and one of whom shall be a current or former member of a local electoral board, to be appointed by the Senate Committee on Rules; and two nonlegislative citizen members, one of whom shall be a current or former member of a town or city council and one of whom shall be a current or former general registrar, to be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Delegates. The Commissioner of Elections or his designee shall serve ex officio with nonvoting privileges. Nonlegislative citizen members shall be citizens of the Commonwealth of Virginia. Unless otherwise approved in writing by the chairman of the joint subcommittee and the respective Clerk, nonlegislative citizen members shall be reimbursed only for travel originating and ending within the Commonwealth of Virginia for the purpose of attending meetings. If a companion joint resolution of the other chamber is agreed to, written authorization of both Clerks shall be required. The joint subcommittee shall elect a chairman and vice-chairman from among its membership, who shall be members of the General Assembly.

In conducting its study, the joint subcommittee shall weigh potential and probable effects of moving some or all of Virginia's state or local elections to even-numbered years in order to coincide with the federal election cycle, including impacts on voter turnout, effects on campaign costs and fundraising, the interplay between state and federal elections and campaign finance laws and regulations, and estimated cost savings for local governments and, in turn, the taxpayers. Any recommendations by the joint subcommittee to consolidate or reschedule Virginia's general elections shall include specific recommendations as to (i) which elected offices' terms should be extended or shortened in order to achieve the recommended shift in the election schedule, (ii) any amendments to the Constitution of Virginia and the Code of Virginia that are necessary to achieve and implement the joint subcommittee's recommended consolidation or schedule, (iii) whether Virginia's current two-year budget cycle should be adjusted, and (iv) any budget amendments that are necessary to accomplish the consolidation and rescheduling.

Administrative staff support shall be provided by the Office of the Clerk of the Senate or the Office of the Clerk of the House of Delegates as may be appropriate for the house in which the chairman of the joint subcommittee serves. Legal, research, policy analysis, and other services as requested by the joint subcommittee shall be provided by the Division of Legislative Services. Technical assistance shall be provided by Department of Elections. All agencies of the Commonwealth shall provide assistance to the joint subcommittee for this study, upon request.

The joint subcommittee shall be limited to four meetings for the 2025 interim and four meetings for the 2026 interim, and the direct costs of this study shall not exceed $19,840 for each year without approval as set out in this resolution. Approval for unbudgeted nonmember-related expenses shall require the written authorization of the chairman of the joint subcommittee and the respective Clerk. If a companion joint resolution of the other chamber is agreed to, written authorization of both Clerks shall be required.

WHEREAS, EDS was first described in the early twentieth century by Dr. Edvard Lauritz Ehlers and Dr. Henri-Alexandre Danlos, and the classifications of EDS have evolved over time, with 14 types of EDS recognized today; and

WHEREAS, the different types of EDS are hypermobile EDS, classical EDS, classical-like-2 EDS, vascular EDS, periodontal EDS, kyphoscoliotic EDS, spondylodysplastic EDS, brittle cornea syndrome, arthrochalasia EDS, musculocontractural EDS, classical-like EDS, dermatosparaxis EDS, myopathic EDS, and cardiac-valvular EDS; and

WHEREAS, each type of EDS is unique and has its own signs and symptoms, although these disorders are most commonly associated with excessively flexible joints and stretchy, fragile skin; and

WHEREAS, in addition to the variability across types of EDS, different individuals with the same type of EDS may experience different signs and symptoms, complicating diagnosis and treatment and often requiring patients to see multiple providers across different specialties; and

WHEREAS, the most common type of EDS, hypermobile EDS, is believed to affect at least one in 3,100-5,000 people, although the true prevalence is not known and may be greater; and

WHEREAS, certain types of EDS may be identified through genetic testing; however, there is currently no such test for hypermobile EDS; and

WHEREAS, EDS shares similarities with hypermobility spectrum disorders, which are connective tissue disorders that cause symptomatic joint hypermobility and joint instability and which cannot be explained by other conditions; they are referred to as spectrum disorders because people experience a wide range of types and severities of symptoms; and

WHEREAS, EDS can greatly impact one's quality of life depending on its severity and is often associated with comorbidities such as dysautonomia, mast cell diseases, and postural orthostatic tachycardia syndrome; and

WHEREAS, there is currently no known cure for EDS, and greater medical research is necessary to offer aid and relief to those coping with this disorder; and

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 259

Directing the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission to study the methodology used to determine judicial allocations within the Commonwealth. Report.

Agreed to by the Senate, January 29, 2025
Agreed to by the House of Delegates, February 20, 2025

WHEREAS, the General Assembly has a constitutional responsibility to provide for judges of courts of record and judges of courts not of record, and acts to ensure the proper allocation of funds and resources to equip the courts of the Commonwealth to carry out justice effectively and efficiently; and

WHEREAS, methods of determining the proper number of authorized judges in courts across the Commonwealth, clerk staff, and other resources necessary for the courts to operate optimally has evolved over time; and

WHEREAS, the General Assembly provided funds for the Supreme Court of Virginia to contract with the National Center for State Courts to conduct a judicial workload assessment study and provide recommendations for any judicial boundary realignment and the recommended number of authorized judgeships for each circuit, general district, and juvenile and domestic relations district court in 2013, and again provided funds for additional judicial workload assessment studies that were conducted by the National Center for State Courts in 2017 and 2024; and

WHEREAS, the current study does not sufficiently account for the lack of standardization across courts, various differences in population size, case complexities, and docketing practices of the courts and locality investments in court systems for law clerks, court clerks, judicial assistants, court administrators, and other services, and possibly relied upon incomplete variables in data used to determine the results of the judicial workload assessment, which impacts the allocations of funds and resources to state courts across the Commonwealth; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the Senate, the House of Delegates concurring, That the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission be directed to study the methodology used to determine judicial allocations within the Commonwealth.

In conducting its study, the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission shall (i) analyze the data gathered and utilized in the three judicial workload assessment studies conducted within the Commonwealth by the National Center for State Courts to determine: (a) the extent to which the lack of standardization in case opening, filing, and coding practices as used by clerks in different circuit, general district, and juvenile and domestic relations district courts across the Commonwealth inhibits the ability of third parties to accurately measure judicial effort and need; (b) if case weights factoring in case complexity were properly calculated and assigned given the actual variations in case complexity across the Commonwealth; (c) if local investments in law clerks, judicial-attorney support, and other locally funded judicial support measures are adequately taken into account in measuring the need for state-funded positions; (d) whether the amount of time, both during court hours and during personal time, that judges spend performing judicial work, and the type of work being performed, is accurately captured, evaluated, assessed, or considered, and, conversely, if the amount of time during court hours that judges are not performing judicial tasks is being captured, evaluated, assessed, or considered; (e) whether the present study is capable of being influenced intentionally or accidentally by practices and systems implemented by judges or court staff; and (f) if the averaging of judicial effort across the entire Commonwealth is an accurate or fair method to approximate needed judicial positions for purposes of appropriating funds for judicial positions; (ii) examine the following: (a) existing court efficiency measures to determine if judges are using time during work hours efficiently to hear and properly decide the maximum number of cases within appropriate time frames, and identify those judicial circuits or districts already utilizing docketing practices that create maximum efficiency in processing caseloads that should be considered potential models in establishing statewide court efficiency measures, statewide best practices, and accountability measures; (b) if there are other contributing factors substantially impacting court efficiency, such as regional or local practices of Commonwealth's attorneys, delays in required services performed outside the courtroom, such as drug screening conducted by local or regional jails, or policy changes within the Department of Social Services or other agencies that impact court appearances or filings; and (c) the use of technology, such as virtual appearances, that streamlines the ability to conduct hearings and reduces conflicts in scheduled appearances for attorneys in cases, motions, or other court appearances; (iii) upon taking into consideration the findings of this study, (a) determine whether state funds would be more appropriately allocated if the Office of the Executive Secretary of the Supreme Court of Virginia standardized case processing and coding procedures through either a uniform electronic case filing system as is utilized in the Federal Courts and by other states or implemented a data analysis program to identify discrepancies in case processing procedures; (b) if maximum time limits should be statutorily mandated in the Code of Virginia or the Rules of Supreme Court of Virginia for various case types so that cases are resolved in a predictable time frame and inefficient practices within various judicial circuits or districts can be better identified, especially in the instance of cases that are time sensitive, place extensive burdens on families and government services and resources, and do not already have statutorily mandated time limits triggering reviews or emergency docketing, such as in cases involving divorce, child support, custody or temporary custody cases, personal injury cases, or the scheduling of preliminary injunctions; (c) provide recommendations to improve the quality and consistency of data used in future judicial workload assessment studies; (d) consider if updates to the Code of Virginia, Rules of Supreme Court of Virginia, Benchbooks utilized by judges, and trainings provided to judges, court clerks, and other court staff would assist in standardizing practices across courts in the Commonwealth and positively impact the resulting data gathered from courts during workload assessments; (e) determine if there are other more accurate means of assessing the workload of judges not previously used in the 2013, 2017, and 2024 judicial workload assessments, and provide suggestions to revise the current method of allocating resources to develop a fair method of allocating resources that is not subject to the influence of self-reported data that may contain inaccuracies, or data that reflects the individual nonstandard practices of court staff or systems implemented by each court; and (g) determine if any other third-party organizations exist to conduct comprehensive judicial workload assessments for state courts, or if the creation or establishment of a commission, agency, or a department within the Office of the Executive Secretary of the Supreme Court of Virginia to act as a permanent independent auditor would be better suited to conduct future judicial workload assessments.

Technical assistance shall be provided to the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission by the Office of the Executive Secretary of the Supreme Court of Virginia, the Virginia Circuit Court Clerks' Association, and the Virginia Association of Commonwealth's Attorneys. All agencies of the Commonwealth shall provide assistance to the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission for this study, upon request.

The Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission shall complete its meetings by November 30, 2026, and the chairman shall submit to the Division of Legislative Automated Systems an executive summary of its findings and recommendations no later than the first day of the 2027 Regular Session of the General Assembly.
