HOUSE BILLS WITH RECOMMENDATIONS BY THE GOVERNOR

H.B. 29 (twenty-nine) was taken up.

The communication from the Governor was as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA
Office of the Governor
April 8, 2024

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 29

I approve of the general purpose of this bill, but I am returning it without my signature with the request that the attached amendments be adopted.

Together, the 242 amendments to the HB 29 and HB 30 that I am offering preserve the vast majority of spending priorities as passed by the General Assembly.

The $64 billion Common Ground Budget eliminates all proposed tax increases, invests a record $21.3 billion in K-12 education, caps tuition increases at 3%, includes 3% pay raises for teachers and state employees in each year, and increases investments in health and human resources by $3.2 billion over the biennium.

To be very clear, the budget passed by the General Assembly eliminated over $850 million of my priority spending items in the introduced budget and $1 billion of tax relief; the Common Ground budget restores only $230 million of those priorities. The Common Ground budget includes $196 million in additional funding for at-risk students, an additional $1 billion in higher education funding, $175 million for the Housing Trust Fund, toll relief in Hampton Roads, a full funding of the state's share of WMATA's short-term funding needs, and $70 million to expedite projects on Interstate-81.

Virginia's Strong Financial Position

Virginia's revenues continue to rise steadily. Annual tax collections rose by 40% in the last five years, fueled by more jobs and economic growth. With the highest labor force in Virginia's history and with more job growth than 42 other states in the last two years, we know that revenues will remain strong even when viewed conservatively against economic uncertainty.

Our reserve fund balances are among the best of any state in the nation. We have over $4.6 billion in reserve funds representing 15% of our annual general fund spending. Revenue collections are running ahead of the revenue forecast by $827 million year to date.

In short, Virginia can fund priorities and maintain our long-term structural balance without raising taxes. I proposed 1 billion in tax relief in my introduced budget, while the budget passed by the General Assembly included tax increases that would cost Virginians $2.6 billion in total. Common Ground – and common sense – says we can write a clean budget without tax increases or tax decreases.

Building on Our Bipartisan Commitment to Funding Education i

The Common Ground Budget continues to build on the bipartisan commitment to funding a high-quality education, setting a new two-year record for K-12 education funding, $21.3 billion, and increasing higher education funding by $1 billion.

The budget includes a 3% teacher pay raise in each year, on top of 12% teacher pay raises adopted in the last two budget cycles. These 18% teacher pay raises are projected to raise average teacher pay in Virginia above the national average by nearly $3,500 a year.

The amendments invest over $800 million for early childhood care and education to support 68,000 early learners previously supported by federal dollars and increase the number of early childhood slot, and increase funding for higher education by $1 billion, including over $150 million for affordable access to cap tuition increases at 3%.

The amendments include $75 million to support PELL grant recipients, $33 million for financial aid, and $24 million to support veterans and their families.

Building on Our Bipartisan Commitment to Health and Human Resources

The Common Ground budget reflects the collective commitment to health and human resources, including our ongoing transformation of Virginia's behavioral health system. The amended budget includes a total of $3.2 billion increase in health and human resources funding over the last biennium.

This includes $895 million to fully fund Medicaid and Children's Health Insurance, $169 million in additional Right Help, Right Now investment, $516 million for over 3,440 development disability waiver slots, and $56 million to increase personal care attendant reimbursement rates.

Building on Our Bipartisan Commitment to Public Safety

The Common Ground budget provides a total of $72.5 million over the biennium for community violence intervention programs, including $20 million to support Operation Ceasefire and $25 million for the Safer Communities program. The amended budget will provide $49 million for the School Resource Officer Incentive Grant Fund, and $4.7 million for increases in Commonwealth Attorney and paralegal positions to address workload needs.

Building On Our Bipartisan Investments in the Commonwealth

The Common Ground budget provides $90 million over the biennium for site development and $175 million for the Virginia Housing Trust Fund. The amended budgets preserve $42.5 million over the biennium for anticipated payments and invests $114 million for biotechnology and life sciences commercialization. In recognition of the leading role the Commonwealth is taking in the celebration of America's semiquincentennial, the Common Ground budget includes $20 million in Fiscal Year 2025 for capital improvements at historic sites and museums and over $15 million in priority investments in historic sites and battlefields.

The budget includes $26.5 million to the City of Bristol to help with landfill remediation, $25 million to the City of Norfolk for Coastal Storm Risk management projects, $50 million to the City of Richmond for the combined sewer overflow project. Combined with significant funding for agricultural best management practices, the Common Ground budget puts over $350 million towards state water quality goals.

Finally, the Common Ground budget removes language mandating Virginia rejoin the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiatives, while providing $100 million in general fund in fiscal year 2025 to the Community Flood Preparedness Fund.

Attached to this letter are my proposed amendments to HB 29. In your review of these proposals, I think you will find they are consistent with the primary objectives that we all have worked toward this year. I respectfully request your adoption of these amendments so that they may be incorporated into the Appropriation Act for the upcoming biennium.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

The Emergency Amendment shall be exempt from the provisions of § 28.2-201.8 of the Code of Virginia."

H.B. 30 (thirty) was taken up.

The communication from the Governor was as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA
Office of the Governor
April 8, 2024

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 30

I approve of the general purpose of this bill, but I am returning it without my signature with the request that the attached amendments be adopted.

Together, the 242 amendments to the HB 29 and HB 30 that I am offering preserve the vast majority of spending priorities as passed by the General Assembly.

The $64 billion Common Ground Budget eliminates all proposed tax increases, invests a record $21.2 billion in K-12 education, caps tuition increases at 3%, includes 3% pay raises for teachers and state employees in each year, and increases investments in health and human resources by $3.2 billion over the biennium.

To be very clear, the budget passed by the General Assembly eliminated over $850 million of my priority spending items in the introduced budget and $1 billion of tax relief; the Common Ground budget restores only $230 million of those priorities. The Common Ground budget includes $196 million in additional funding for at-risk students, an additional $1 billion in higher education funding, $175 million for the Housing Trust Fund, toll relief in Hampton Roads, a full funding of the state's share of WMATA's short-term funding needs, and $70 million to expedite projects on Interstate-81.

Virginia's Strong Financial Position

Virginia's revenues continue to rise steadily. Annual tax collections rose by 40% in the last five years, fueled by more jobs and economic growth. With the highest labor force in Virginia's history and with more job growth than 42 other states in the last two years, we know that revenues will remain strong even when viewed conservatively against economic uncertainty.

Our reserve fund balances are among the best of any state in the nation. We have over $4.6 billion in reserve funds representing 15% of our annual general fund spending. Revenue collections are running ahead of the revenue forecast by $827 million year to date.

In short, Virginia can fund priorities and maintain our long-term structural balance without raising taxes. I proposed 1 billion in tax relief in my introduced budget, while the budget passed by the General Assembly included tax increases that would cost Virginians $2.6 billion in total. Common Ground – and common sense – says we can write a clean budget without tax increases or tax decreases.

Building on Our Bipartisan Commitment to Funding Education i

The Common Ground Budget continues to build on the bipartisan commitment to funding a high-quality education, setting a new two-year record for K-12 education funding, $21.2 billion, and increasing higher education funding by $1 billion.

The budget includes a 3% teacher pay raise in each year, on top of 12% teacher pay raises adopted in the last two budget cycles. These 18% teacher pay raises are projected to raise average teacher pay in Virginia above the national average by nearly $3,500 a year.

The amendments invest over $800 million for early childhood care and education to support 68,000 early learners previously supported by federal dollars and increase the number of early childhood slot, and increase funding for higher education by $1 billion, including over $150 million for affordable access to cap tuition increases at 3%.

The amendments include $75 million to support PELL grant recipients, $33 million for financial aid, and $24 million to support veterans and their families.

Building on Our Bipartisan Commitment to Health and Human Resources

The Common Ground budget reflects the collective commitment to health and human resources, including our ongoing transformation of Virginia's behavioral health system. The amended budget includes a total of $3.2 billion increase in health and human resources funding over the last biennium.

This includes $895 million to fully fund Medicaid and Children's Health Insurance, $169 million in additional Right Help, Right Now investment, $516 million for over 3,440 development disability waiver slots, and $56 million to increase personal care attendant reimbursement rates.

Building on Our Bipartisan Commitment to Public Safety

The Common Ground budget provides a total of $72.5 million over the biennium for community violence intervention programs, including $20 million to support Operation Ceasefire and $25 million for the Safer Communities program. The amended budget will provide $49 million for the School Resource Officer Incentive Grant Fund, and $4.7 million for increases in Commonwealth Attorney and paralegal positions to address workload needs.

Building On Our Bipartisan Investments in the Commonwealth

The Common Ground budget provides $90 million over the biennium for site development and $175 million for the Virginia Housing Trust Fund. The amended budgets preserve $42.5 million over the biennium for anticipated payments and invests $114 million for biotechnology and life sciences commercialization. In recognition of the leading role the Commonwealth is taking in the celebration of America's semiquincentennial, the Common Ground budget includes $20 million in Fiscal Year 2025 for capital improvements at historic sites and museums and over $15 million in priority investments in historic sites and battlefields.

The budget includes $26.5 million to the City of Bristol to help with landfill remediation, $25 million to the City of Norfolk for Coastal Storm Risk management projects, $50 million to the City of Richmond for the combined sewer overflow project. Combined with significant funding for agricultural best management practices, the Common Ground budget puts over $350 million towards state water quality goals.

Finally, the Common Ground budget removes language mandating Virginia rejoin the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiatives, while providing $100 million in general fund in fiscal year 2025 to the Community Flood Preparedness Fund.

Attached to this letter are my proposed amendments to HB 30. In your review of these proposals, I think you will find they are consistent with the primary objectives that we all have worked toward this year. I respectfully request your adoption of these amendments so that they may be incorporated into the Appropriation Act for the upcoming biennium.

Sincerely,

/s/ Glenn Youngkin

Additionally, notwithstanding paragraph F.2. of this item and § 33.2-1526.1 (K), Code of Virginia, the total Virginia operating assistance in the approved WMATA budget for fiscal year 2026 and each fiscal year thereafter shall not exceed an amount equivalent to the total Virginia operating assistance provided in fiscal year 2024 plus 3 percent per annum and allowing for items excluded from the calculation of any WMATA budget increase as provided in § 33.2-1526.1 (K), Code of Virginia. In the event the total Virginia operating assistance in WMATA's approved budget for fiscal year 2026 and each subsequent fiscal year exceeds such an amount, the Commonwealth Transportation Board shall withhold an amount equal to 35 percent of the funds available under § 33.2-1526.1 (D)4, Code of Virginia.

d. Following the adoption and approval of the business plan, WMATA shall provide the Chair of the Senate Committee on Finance and Appropriations, Chair of the House Appropriations Committee, and Governor with a quarterly update detailing the implementation status of initiatives included in its business plan, including any associated cost savings or revenues that the Authority has realized by implementing the initiative.

HOUSE BILLS VETOED BY THE GOVERNOR

H.B. 46 (forty-six) was taken up.

The communication from the Governor was as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA
Office of the Governor
March 8th, 2024

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 46

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 46, which relates to firearm transfers to another person from a person subject to a protective order or convicted of a misdemeanor.

I join the patrons in their pursuit of condemning domestic abuse, it is unequivocally deplorable. Make no mistake, Virginia should ensure that domestic abusers are dealt with appropriately, and those who resort to illegal firearm use, especially, should face severe and harsh punishments.

The legislation fails to achieve its intended purpose and is unnecessary. The existing legal framework addresses firearm possession in cases of domestic abuse. Courts have the power to require the transfer of firearms from individuals, and law enforcement can obtain a search warrant to seize for illegally possessed weapons. Additionally, all firearm transfers are currently limited to individuals who are legally allowed to possess firearms.

To avoid inadvertent compromises to public safety, policies should refrain from disarming individuals not subject to a court order, making other family members less safe, which contradicts our shared goal. The arbitrary age prohibition, which contradicts our current legal age of possession, on certain transfers adds further confusion.

As I advocate for greater protections for victims, I strongly urge the General Assembly to shift its focus towards proven strategies aimed at combatting violent crime - mandatory minimums for armed criminals and the presumption against bail.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

No action was taken on the Governor's veto.

H.B. 110 (one, ten) was taken up.

The communication from the Governor was as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA
Office of the Governor
March 8th, 2024

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 110

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 110, which repeals the Commonwealth's prohibition on commercial surrogacy brokers.

While I recognize the desire for an efficient surrogacy process, the Commonwealth must carefully consider the serious concerns that arise when we allow the increased commercialization and profit-driven commodification of surrogacy.

In 1991, Virginia took a significant and virtuous step by legalizing surrogacy. The Commonwealth recognized the complexities surrounding surrogacy regulation and opted for a permissive framework with notable restrictions, including the prohibition of for-profit brokering. This deliberate decision was made to safeguard against the risks associated with financial motives dominating the surrogacy landscape. Removing this prohibition without a simultaneous review of regulations, potentially disrupts Virginia's established legal structure.

Commercial surrogacy brokers, driven primarily by financial gain, may divert attention from the successful pregnancy, the welfare of the child, and the interests of both the intended parents and the surrogate. Our current legal framework acknowledges some of those concerns and has sought to strike a balance, which may be disrupted by the unchecked entry of profit-driven brokers into this space.

Allowing brokers, who are contractually obligated to represent the intended parents, leads to the possibility of coercion and abuse of surrogates. Human trafficking related to commercial surrogacy is increasing worldwide, resulting in exploitation, extortion, and ethical abuses such as requesting specific hormones or medications for the surrogate, which would be exacerbated with commercialization.

Virginia's existing legal framework requires legal representation for both intended parents and surrogates, a requirement that attempts to ensure impartiality; however, this falls short in addressing the nuances and potential abuses that may arise. Some attorneys might lack the specialized experience needed to navigate the intricate details of surrogacy contracts, which will necessitate negotiating with well-resourced, experienced, and professional brokers, leaving surrogates vulnerable to potential abuses.

The free market is a powerful and significant force for raising individuals out of poverty, but we must recognize that not all areas are suitable for commodification. Surrogacy involves a profound bond between a mother and her child, a relationship that transcends monetary transactions. These brokers may bring some element efficiency to the process, but the potential erosion of the ethical foundations that underpin surrogacy goes too far.

My commitment is to ensure that this treatment is fair and provides opportunities for intended parents and children, while ensuring that financial motives never overshadow the profound and selfless act of bringing life into the world.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

HOUSE BILL NO. 651

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 651, which directs the Virginia Information Technologies Agency (VITA) to assess the creation of a cyber civilian corps for the Commonwealth.

The challenges in developing a civilian cybersecurity corps include continued financial obligations, background checks, liability protections, and ongoing recruitment. Additionally, implementation of the proposal is complicated by the need to balance the potential civilian corps with the established cybersecurity team at the Virginia National Guard.

I believe that the proposed workgroup could successfully address some of these issues, but in the context of the Commonwealth's present cybersecurity situation, it is premature.

The ability of the National Guard to be deployed by the Governor for cyber-related support is currently legally ambiguous. This year, legislation to clarify this authority was rejected. The continued uncertainty potentially limits the Commonwealth's ability to assist in emergency cybersecurity situations.

The rejection of the proposed legislation to clarify the Governor's powers is troubling for its evident partisanship and strains the resources of VITA.

As we address cybersecurity, the Commonwealth should prioritize collaboration, transparency, and foresight.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

The communication from the Governor was as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA

March 8th, 2024

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 833

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 833, which creates exemptions to the definition of the abused and neglected child and restricts the consideration of courts related to an individual's consumption and possession of controlled substances.

The proposed legislation, aiming to address a non-existent problem, has potential consequences that may expose children to harm.

Child protective service (CPS) referrals rarely, if ever, involve screening solely based on parents' legal use of controlled substances or marijuana. Instead, cases typically encompass additional risk factors like impaired supervision, access to drugs or drug paraphernalia, or a parent's inability to meet the child's basic needs. The inherent risk of unintended consequences, potentially endangering child safety by dissuading local departments of social services from implementing necessary protective measures, disrupts the balanced approach of current CPS policies, thus jeopardizing the well-being of vulnerable children.

The proposed exemption to the definition of an "abused or neglected child" raises concerns by needlessly complicating an already intricate legal domain. These exceptions overlook the necessity for judges and CPS workers to assess unique factors and circumstances in each case, potentially hindering effective decision-making.

The proposal undermines the tangible link between substance use and harm to children, evident in the increased calls to poison control and emergency room visits for children consuming cannabis-infused substances following the authorization of personal marijuana possession. The blanket exemption further places children at risk by potentially endangering their welfare.

This is a significant threat to child safety, potentially shielding parents engaging in substance possession or consumption from scrutiny. This failure to consider nuanced circumstances undermines the child's best interests and contradicts our efforts to address substance misuse in families and communities.

Accordingly, I veto the bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA

March 28, 2024

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 1

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1, which mandates an increase in the minimum wage in Virginia.

The free market for salaries and wages works. It operates dynamically, responding to the nuances of varying economic conditions and regional differences. This wage mandate imperils market freedom and economic competitiveness.

Even without my signature, current law mandates an increased minimum wage in the Commonwealth, indexing it to the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers, as certified by the Commissioner of Labor and Industry, starting in October 2024. This approach is preferable, allowing wages to adjust over time in response to economic conditions. In contrast, the proposed mandate will harm Virginia's economic progress.

Implementing a $15-per-hour wage mandate may not impact Northern Virginia, where economic conditions create a higher cost of living, but this approach is detrimental for small businesses across the rest of Virginia, especially in Southwest and Southside. A one-size-fits-all mandate ignores the vast economic and geographic differences and undermines the ability to adapt to regional cost-of-living differences and market dynamics.

This proposal is an arbitrary, mandatory 25% increase in the starting wages of all employees. Contrary to ensuring higher compensation, such a substantial increase will raise business operational costs. In response, businesses will raise prices, creating more inflation, and implement hiring freezes and layoffs, ultimately hurting the workers the proposal seeks to assist.

This proposal also harms Virginia's economic competitiveness. Neighboring states have reduced business costs and encouraged investment, resulting in thriving economies. The net out-migration of over one hundred thousand residents from Virginia between 2012 and 2021, primarily to states like North Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Georgia, none of which have wage mandates.

Contrary to the proponents' claims, the proposal is unlikely to attract jobs to the Commonwealth. Virginia is experiencing a population decline to states with lower minimum wages while gaining population from states with higher minimum wages. Instead of adopting the failed economic policies of states with stagnant economies and persistent fiscal distress to our northeast, Virginia should emulate states prioritizing tax relief and efficient government.

Successful states recognize that the government does not need to set labor prices; instead, they prioritize creating an economic environment conducive to wage growth. The Commonwealth should adopt this approach, reducing taxes, reducing regulations, reforming workforce programs, and investing in public education. Allowing the free market to operate is the only proven long-term path toward sustainable economic growth and prosperity.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

HOUSE BILL NO. 2

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 2, which creates new penalties for transferring and possessing certain firearms containing certain components.

The Constitution precludes the Commonwealth from prohibiting a broad category of firearms widely embraced for lawful purposes, such as self-defense. Despite this, certain members of the General Assembly have pursued legislation banning most contemporary semiautomatic firearms and specific ammunition-feeding devices.

Like all Virginians, I am profoundly troubled by the occurrences of mass shootings and crimes committed with firearms. The pain and sorrow inflicted by criminals with heinous intentions are truly heart-wrenching and should not be minimized for our communities, the victims, or their families.

Virginia has some of the strictest gun laws in the country. Unfortunately, the Commonwealth has reduced penalties for criminals, contributing to violent crime. Enhancing penalties for crimes committed with firearms will reverse this trend. Our most significant gap, however, has been in our behavioral health system, which is why substantial investments in behavioral health are necessary.

That twofold approach can provide a real solution without creating outcomes that would affect law-abiding citizens and violating our constitutional rights.

HOUSE BILL NO. 45

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 45 which includes incarceration prior to entry of the final order of conviction in the calculations for eligibility of earned sentence credits.

The proposal allows inmates to receive earned sentence credits for time served before a conviction, including time spent in state hospitals and retroactively applies to those serving sentences. This is a further departure from the Commonwealth's historical and bipartisan truth-in-sentencing policy.

The ramifications of such a policy shift are alarming. Not only would it necessitate recalculating virtually every inmate's sentence, but it would also undermine public safety by releasing individuals at a heightened risk of re-offending. Data shows that similar measures have led to higher re-arrest rates, increased volumes of new convictions, and elevated recidivism risks.

Applying broadened earned sentence credits raises serious concerns for the justice system and public safety. Eligibility for these credits extends to individuals who are already parole-eligible, leading to absurd outcomes where offenders currently under supervision could be released prematurely.

Lastly, the proposal bill fails to shield the Commonwealth from potential legal liabilities adequately. While it may offer limited protection against specific claims brought under § 8.01-195.11, it does not provide protections brought under Tort Claims Against the Commonwealth of Virginia (§ 8.01-195.1 et seq.) and cannot shield claims brought under federal law. The burden placed on our judicial system by these potential lawsuits, coupled with the resources required for sentence recalculations, further underscore the impracticality and recklessness of this bill.

By prioritizing leniency over accountability, it disregards the interests of victims and places our communities at risk.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

The Department of Conservation and Recreation (the Department) already publishes and distributes educational information related to invasive plant species and the benefits of planting native species. Virginia should continue to educate consumers about invasive plant species and encourage them to seek alternatives.

The proposal, however, places additional requirements and imposes civil penalties on Virginia's small businesses for the sale of plants with low levels of invasiveness, such as periwinkle and winter honeysuckle.

Additionally, the Department's invasive species list would function as the legally binding authority regarding invasive species, circumventing the Administrative Process Act, which involves a public notice and comment period.

HOUSE BILL NO. 63

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 63, which relates to requests for a jury to ascertain punishment.

The proposal allows an accused individual to withdraw a jury sentencing request until the commencement of the sentencing proceeding and allows counsel to examine jurors regarding the potential range of punishment regardless of whether the jury will provide a sentence.

The determination of guilt or innocence of an individual should not be influenced by the potential range of punishments. The procedure for informing jurors of the sentencing range changed in 2020. Since then, jurors are made aware of the sentencing range during the jury selection process, as they will be responsible for determining the sentence.

Providing the potential range of sentencing during jury selection only serves to influence juror decision-making inappropriately. In practice, this proposal endorses jury nullification, which occurs when a jury acquits despite evidence proving guilt.

The bill will also unduly burden victims who have prepared to testify before the jury about the effects of the crime.

Further, the proposed ability to revoke the request for jury sentencing before and after the sentencing phase will require prosecutors to expend unnecessary resources. Our courts operate with funding constraints, and providing defendants with the right to retract their request for jury sentencing until sentencing commences would be burdensome for our legal system.

HOUSE BILL NO. 77

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 77, which extends enhanced earned sentence credits and parole eligibility to individuals convicted of robbery.

The proposal poses significant public safety consequences for the Commonwealth, further reducing the tiered penalties for the different types of robberies.

The legislation's most concerning component is its retroactive nature. The Department of Corrections (DOC) has reported that as of March 1, 2024, approximately 3,340 inmates with robbery as their most serious offense are incarcerated.

Releasing violent offenders early harms our community. Of the cohort of inmates released last July and August with enhanced earned sentence credits, 804 were re-arrested within three months of their release date. Fifty of those who were re-arrested committed a robbery offense.

This bill further erodes the public's confidence in safe streets. The legislative changes made during the prior administration substantially reduced the potential punishment for robbery offenses. This bill further reduces the consequences for robbery, including those committed using a deadly weapon or physical force or committed by repeat offenders.

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 157

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 157 which removes the farmworker exemption from the Virginia Minimum Wage Act.

Producers who employ H-2A workers must adhere to the U.S. Department of Labor's Adverse Effect Wage Rate (AEWR), currently set at $15.81 per hour. Even farms that do not employ H-2A workers pay the AEWR to compete with those that do.

The AEWR is determined using various domestic workers' annual average gross wage rates in a state or region, and therefore the prevailing market wage influences the AEWR.

Farmers have a unique economic environment with unpredictable weather and fluctuating production costs. Due to federal pricing systems and global market conditions, farmers often lack control over the prices they receive for their goods. Agricultural budgeting and operations are already challenging, and imposing a wage mandate without considering these factors could drive small and medium-sized farms into debt or closure.

The agricultural sector has thin margins, and this bill will significantly affect the industry. The data from the USDA Census of Agriculture and the Weldon Cooper Center for Public Policy further emphasize the importance of supporting our agriculture industry. The loss of five thousand farms and nearly five hundred thousand acres of farmland in the last five years has dramatically altered our economy and communities.

Each job created in the agriculture sector simulates 1.6 jobs elsewhere in Virginia's economy. This multiplier effect demonstrates the agriculture sector's significant effect on the overall state economy. This ripple effect helps to drive economic growth and stability across Virginia, making agriculture a crucial component of the state's prosperity.

The AEWR already materially determines the labor rates. A further wage mandate financially strains farmers, leading to farm closures, job losses, and increased consumer food prices.

Accordingly, I veto the bill.

The proposal expands the current safe harbor statute, reducing the requirements for immunity for inmates and extending immunity for a range of crimes. This expansion could exacerbate drug abuse in correctional facilities and impede sheriffs' and corrections officers' efforts to maintain safety.

Granting immunity to inmates from internal discipline and prosecution for possessing drugs, including narcotics, undermines our system of law and order. Our correctional facilities' primary responsibility is to ensure a safe environment for those in our care and those who work there.

Additionally, I have received numerous letters from sheriffs around the Commonwealth who have asked me to stand with them for public safety.

The proposed legislation prohibits carrying a broad category of commonly used firearms in various public spaces, including streets, roads, sidewalks, parks, and other public areas. Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 183, which relates to the storage of firearms where a minor or person prohibiting a firearm is present.
This legislation would limit individuals' access to firearms in their homes.

A similar law was deemed unconstitutional in District of Columbia v. Heller. The court ruled that mandates on storage or trigger locks that make it impractical for citizens to use firearms for the lawful purpose of self-defense are unconstitutional.

The proposed language could prove problematic in cases of necessary home defense when firearm access may be crucial. Further, it would completely disarm individuals who cannot afford a storage device. While the intent may not be to strip the poorest Virginians of their right to self-defense, the proposal would price them out of the market for a fundamental right.

The suggested exemption for carrying weapons is impractical, for example, while sleeping or doing household chores. This exemption leaves individuals with only one option for self-defense; such a requirement would lead to law-abiding Virginians carrying their weapons irresponsibly and dangerously.

HOUSE BILL NO. 212

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 212 relating to board-level gender and diversity requirements for economic development incentives.

The proposal seeks to alter the responsibilities of the Major Employment and Investment Project Approval Commission (the Commission). While diversity and inclusivity are commendable aspirations for businesses, noble intentions should not justify circumventing the Commission's obligations.

The Commission's role is to scrutinize financing for individual incentive packages, not assess whether a business adheres to a requirement akin to a demographic-based quota. Such requirements could deter companies from investing in the Commonwealth, especially privately held or family-owned enterprises, which may be wholly precluded.

The quota-like system overlooks the achievements of women and minorities in their own right. Both groups have made significant strides in board representation and mandating specific demographic compositions risks undermining their accomplishments.

Ultimately, the proposal fails to acknowledge that the primary beneficiaries of economic development are not board members but individuals who secure gainful employment. A genuinely egalitarian approach should focus on attracting businesses to the Commonwealth and fostering opportunities for expansion and investment in individuals.

These existing standards are regularly updated to incorporate the latest research, best practices, and the evolving needs of the law enforcement community.

A new, loosely defined, and excessively broad affirmative defense is unnecessary because Virginia laws already provide protections for individuals who are not criminally responsible due to mental illness.

The federal Protection of Lawful Commerce in Arms Act (PLCAA) already provides a framework for addressing civil actions against firearms industry entities concerning negligent entrustment and defects. This federal law, grounded in common sense and common law principles, prevents baseless litigation that could financially devastate a lawful industry with exorbitant legal fees. Other lawful industries, such as vaccine producers, have similar protections.

Even under Presidents Obama and Biden, the Department of Justice has consistently defended the PLCAA. The DOJ has argued against attempts by states to implement regulatory schemes as a loophole to the PLCAA, deeming them unconstitutional and lacking merit.

Our legal system should prioritize punishing criminals rather than targeting law-abiding manufacturers and retailers within the firearms industry.

Under the proposal, the Virginia Council of Environmental Justice (the Council) would be eligible for increased taxpayer-funded travel reimbursement and gain extensive authority over the Secretary of Natural and Historic Resources staff despite its statutorily defined status as an advisory collegial body.

While I oppose those specific provisions, the Council was established with the ostensibly proper recognition that environmental issues can have varying effects on different communities. In a broader context, however, the theory of the Council conflicts with its duties as a state-level body capable of obstructing local projects.

The proposed top-down approach would perpetuate past disparities, preventing the construction of infrastructure in underserved communities, hindering permits necessary for the advancement of clean energy, and imposing regressive costs that disproportionately affect Virginia's poorest citizens. Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 351, which requires firearm locking devices or certifications to sell, purchase, or transfer firearms to individuals in households where minors reside.

In 2023, I signed House Bill 2387, which created a tax credit for firearm safety devices. This legislation enhanced public safety and encouraged responsible firearm ownership. I remain willing and ready to collaborate with the General Assembly on more incentives to ensure secure firearm storage and prevent access by dangerous individuals.

Just this year, the General Assembly passed bipartisan legislation, which I signed, that prevents parents from willfully allowing a minor child to gain access to a firearm if that child poses a threat of credible violence.

These approaches are collaborative and account for areas of bipartisan compromise, which can ultimately lead to the safety and well-being of children without affecting law-abiding citizens or their constitutional guarantees.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

HOUSE BILL NO. 362

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 362, which relates to the purchase, possession, or transportation of a firearm following a misdemeanor conviction of assault and battery.

I join the patrons in their pursuit of condemning domestic abuse; it is unequivocally deplorable. Virginia should ensure that convicted domestic abusers are dealt with appropriately and those who resort to illegal firearm use, especially, should face severe and harsh punishments. To that end, Virginia already has mechanisms for disarming dangerous individuals, such as through protective orders.

Individuals convicted of felony assault and battery already automatically lose their firearm rights. This proposal, however, aims to extend the prohibition of firearm possession for misdemeanors beyond existing restrictions for family and household members. It would now encompass a vaguely defined category of intimate partners without an objective standard.

Additionally, changing the definition of family or household member has far-reaching effects, such as the jurisdiction of juvenile and domestic courts, petitions for relief of custody, and whom a court may prohibit contact with following a conviction for recruitment for criminal street gangs.
Accordingly, I veto this bill.

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 385

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 385, which mandates crew sizes for trains, locomotives, or light engines.

While I support the goal of improving safety within the rail industry, the proposed methods appear premature and lack the necessary nuance required for effective regulation. A comprehensive strategy is best achieved through the established framework of the federal government's ongoing rulemaking process.

According to reports from the Federal Railroad Administration (FRA) and the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB), the available evidence does not conclusively support the notion that two-person crews are inherently safer.

Mandating crew sizes, as proposed, is a blunt regulatory tool that encroaches upon the established mechanisms for railroads and unions to negotiate staffing and scheduling matters through collective bargaining.

The effect of the proposed legislation extends beyond a labor-related concern. Short-line railroads, our last mile freight transport providers, are significantly affected. The proposed regulations disrupt their ability to access new markets, jeopardizing the success of initiatives such as the establishment of inland ports – initiatives crucial for the economic progress of our rural communities and the Commonwealth.

Moreover, the proposed regulations would impose constraints on our supply chain, impeding our ability to manage inflation and cope with rising costs of living and doing business in Virginia. The economic repercussions pose a genuine threat to the stability of our economy.

The proposal also distorts the entirety of our transportation sector by diverting traffic from rail to our highways. At a time when the Commonwealth is diligently working to address congestion issues, the proposed regulations appear counterproductive.

Finally, the proposed legislation risks hindering technology and innovation in the rail industry, by impeding the development of opportunities, such as autonomous rail operations.

Prematurely constraining a fuel-efficient mode of freight transport while simultaneously advocating for the mandating of electric vehicles to address environmental concerns raises questions about the coherence and foresight of the proposal.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

HOUSE BILL NO. 398

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 398, which prohibits certain school discipline methods without first using a restorative practice.

Virginia is in the midst of a school discipline crisis. On November 17, 2023, twenty-seven Charlottesville High School teachers refused to come to school after a wave of classroom violence resulted in police being called to the school twice in one day. Teachers who are concerned about decaying discipline in our schools consistently point to a failure to confront and address the small number of students who are responsible for this violence.

Fundamentally, for our schools to be safe places for young Virginians to learn and become active citizens, they must be safe. The bill proposes a top-down mandate, forcing school administrators to first utilize restorative practices rather than immediately suspending or otherwise disciplining students who are violent in school.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

HOUSE BILL NO. 418

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 418, establishing the types, certification, rules, and venue for civil actions filed on behalf of multiple persons.

The legal landscape in Virginia accommodates class actions, with federal courts empowered to adjudicate such cases under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Even claims solely rooted in Virginia law can find recourse in federal jurisdictions.

The proposed changes have far-reaching implications by broadening the scope of statutory damages available under the Virginia Consumer Protection Act. The possible statutory damages resulting from these consumer class actions will coerce defendants into settlements to avoid potentially ruinous financial consequences.

The recent expansion of the Court of Appeals within the Commonwealth's legal apparatus must be considered when assessing this proposal. This was the most significant modification to our legal system in decades, and consequently, the court continues to absorb the backlog of dockets, which must be resolved.

Commerce is based on a legal environment that maintains fairness. Excessive tort liabilities and the threat of litigation expenses can force businesses to close their doors, imperiling economic growth. Achieving a balanced legal system means addressing the concerns of both litigants and businesses in tandem. Only through a nuanced approach that acknowledges both excesses and deficiencies can Virginia's economy continue to flourish.

Housing providers and tenants often enter into arrangements supplemental to the rental agreement to address issues, including nonpayment of rent. This bill would insert the government between housing providers and tenants and interfere with these relationships and the parties' freedom to craft an arrangement that fits their needs.

Additionally, the payment plan procedures established by this bill would be burdensome on small businesses and expose housing providers to legal liability. Compliance with Virginia's rental regulations is already complex and cumbersome for these small businesses, and this bill would exacerbate those issues.

HOUSE BILL NO. 455

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 455, which relates to the possession of an item containing residue of a controlled substance.

This bill empowers Commonwealth attorneys to request a reduction in criminal charges for possession of a controlled substance if the amount in question constitutes residue. The Commonwealth had a staggering 2,490 drug overdose deaths in 2022, tearing apart families and communities while fueling crime and violence.

Reducing charges for possession of controlled substances undermines the seriousness of drug offenses. The proposal will lead to the public's perception that possession of residue of a scheduled drug such as cocaine or heroin is not a serious offense, akin to underage alcohol possession. Such perception would hinder our efforts to combat drug crises, such as the opioid epidemic.

Finally, law enforcement and prosecutors already have discretion in charging decisions, allowing for consideration of individual circumstances. The proposal's additional discretion will lead to inconsistent enforcement and legal confusion.

Virginia must remain steadfast in its efforts to combat drug abuse and its devastating consequences.

Many of the offenders covered by the proposal committed serious crimes and demonstrated their capacity to act as dangerous individuals.

HOUSE BILL NO. 466

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 466, relating reciprocity with other states regarding concealed handgun permits.

Virginia's current system of concealed handgun permit reciprocity works. The Commonwealth recognizes valid concealed weapon permits issued by other states that meet certain conditions, and a sizeable majority of other states recognize Virginia's concealed handgun permits.

The proposed legislation, however, targets law-abiding Virginia gun owners by restricting the number of states in which permit holders can carry handguns for self-defense, potentially discouraging gun owners from visiting the Commonwealth.

In 2015, the previous Attorney General unilaterally revoked concealed handgun permit reciprocity with twenty-five other states, using a law similar to the proposed legislation.

A few months later, the General Assembly came together in a bipartisan effort to restrict the previous Attorney General's authority in revoking permits. The agreement addressed limitations on firearm possession during protective orders, implemented heightened background checks at gun shows, and demonstrated bipartisan unity in navigating the complexities of firearm ownership and its effects on public safety.

The primary mission of the Board of Medicine is to protect the public from incompetent, dangerous, and unprofessional medical providers. This legislation compromises the Board's ability to fulfill that mission.

This bill also opens the door to a resurgence of unsafe, risky abortions occurring outside of clinical settings, and it places any unprofessional behavior during an abortion outside the Board's jurisdiction for disciplinary action.

In the pursuit of mitigating disciplinary actions by the Board of Medicine against physicians performing abortions, this proposal jeopardizes the safety of women and undermines the duty of the Board in providing necessary disciplinary measures against doctors engaging in unsafe practices.

Virginia's current law on tree canopy ordinances strikes a balance between the ability of a locality to hinder residential and commercial development with increased costs and the ability of a locality to preserve tree canopy. Existing law allows any locality with a population density of at least 75 persons per square mile or any locality within the Chesapeake Bay watershed to adopt such an ordinance. According to the Virginia Department of Forestry, sixty percent of Virginia is in the Chesapeake Bay Watershed already.

HOUSE BILL NO. 569

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 569, which requires employee notification of federal and state statutes of limitations.

The proposed expansion of employer obligations and broadened definition of employer will disproportionately affect small businesses and nonprofits in the Commonwealth.

Under this proposal, employers must notify employees in writing of their right to file charges with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) of the Office of the Attorney General (OAG) during any new employee orientation, workplace conduct training, or after receiving any complaint that an employee may pursue through the EEOC or the OAG.

Small businesses, especially those lacking legal expertise, would be required to provide filing instructions amidst various workplace scenarios. This requirement places a heavy burden on small businesses, forcing them to consistently remember to provide employees with information.

For instance, a small retail establishment that hires a temporary, seasonal employee could face litigation risk simply for not mentioning filing instructions during a cashier's orientation, or a small restaurant may be liable for not being aware that harassment can extend beyond the victim, including offensive conduct affecting anyone, even those without economic injury, and that non-employees can be harassers.

Employers are not legal counselors and should not be expected to provide legal advice to employees regarding potential legal actions against their own companies.

While the proposal may aim to bolster employee protections, its practical application poses significant challenges and heightens litigation risks for small businesses.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

HOUSE BILL NO. 570

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 570, establishing a Prescription Drug Affordability Board.

Though noble in its intent, the proposal carries numerous unintended consequences. While it is imperative to lower drug prices, it must not compromise patient welfare.

The proposed authority granted to the Prescription Drug Affordability Board (PDAB) would allow medication availability to be determined based solely on cost considerations rather than accounting for the expert opinions of healthcare professionals and the unique medical needs of individual patients. This approach could limit access to treatments and hinder medical innovation, especially for life-threatening or rare diseases.

The implications of the proposed upper payment limits (UPLs) are detrimental for patients with life-threatening diseases such as cancer. As we are acutely aware, life-saving treatments often entail the use of high-cost drugs targeted by these affordability measures; bringing down the costs of these drugs will require full transparency of prices and discounts and more competition and economic freedom, not price controls. Considering the pharmaceutical supply chain's complexity, imposing arbitrary UPLs could limit access to life-saving pharmaceuticals and harm patients' health.

Experiences from other states like Maryland and Colorado, which have similar PDABs, show high implementation costs, including higher taxes, without significant savings for those in need.

Pharmaceutical affordability is a major issue for Virginians. Full transparency into actual pricing and discounts and more competition are key to bring prices down while not stifling innovation. This year I have also signed bipartisan legislation to provide cost-saving transparency and regulations pharmaceutical benefit managers and legislation that directs the Secretary of Health and Human Resources to study and plan for import lower cost drugs for Virginians.

The Commonwealth should prioritize patient well-being, maintain access to essential medications, and support healthcare innovation. We can do all this and lower the cost of prescription drugs for Virginians.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

HOUSE BILL NO. 571

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 571, which relates to the scope and use of policies on parental notification of instructional material that includes sexually explicit content.

In accordance with Senate Bill 656 (2022), the Virginia Department of Education (VDOE) released "Model Policies on Instructional Materials with Sexually Explicit Content." Developed through collaboration with educational leaders and parents, the model policy bolsters parental rights by granting parents more decision-making authority in their child's education. The model specifically states: "the Act shall not be construed to require or provide for the censoring of books in public elementary and secondary schools."

Despite the proponents' claim that the current proposal codifies the enactment clause found in Chapter 100 of the 2022 Acts of Assembly, there are significant language differences that may cause confusion among school administrators, divisions, parents, and students.

Current law unequivocally affirms that the adoption of these model policies by a school board should not be interpreted as requiring or providing for the censorship of books in public elementary and secondary schools. Therefore, the bill is unnecessary.

By all appearances, this legislation targets one individual in Prince William County, to whom the Prince William Board of County Supervisors granted a home-based firearms license.
The legislation's specificity, coupled with the circumstances preceding its passage, comprises a bill of attainder. Consequently, it is unconstitutional under Virginia's Bill of Rights.

Home-based firearm dealers are already subject to comprehensive federal, state, and local regulations. The imposition of this restriction on a lawful commercial activity appears unconstitutional, retaliatory, and arbitrary.

This initiative duplicates existing training provided by the Department of Criminal Justice Services (DCJS) to various constituent groups across the Commonwealth upon request. Moreover, the Firearm Violence Intervention and Prevention Fund already permits the utilization of grant funds to support safe firearm removal practices for individuals prohibited from possessing a firearm.

The substantial risk order law became effective in Virginia on July 1, 2020, prompting the General Assembly to create a full-time position at DCJS to oversee statewide risk order training and implementation. DCJS has since been actively conducting risk order training to offer instruction on the law, procedures, and recommendations for best practices from law enforcement.

In addition, $500,000 was allocated in 2021 for DCJS to establish a grant program funding substantial risk order training for localities. TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 698

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 698, establishing a framework for creating a retail marijuana market in the Commonwealth.

The proposed legalization of retail marijuana in the Commonwealth endangers Virginians' health and safety. States following this path have seen adverse effects on children's and adolescent's health and safety, increased gang activity and violent crime, significant deterioration in mental health, decreased road safety, and significant costs associated with retail marijuana that far exceed tax revenue. It also does not eliminate the illegal black-market sale of cannabis, nor guarantee product safety. Addressing the inconsistencies in enforcement and regulation in Virginia's current laws does not justify expanding access to cannabis, following the failed paths of other states and endangering Virginians' health and safety.

I. The Adverse Effects on Children's Health & Safety

The most concerning consequence of cannabis commercialization is its impact on adolescents and our children. As cannabis has become legalized and commercialized, calls to U.S. Poison Control for children who have overdosed on edible cannabis products have increased by 400% since 2016.

In particular, Colorado, Washington, Ohio, and Massachusetts have experienced significantly more cannabis-related calls to poison control centers and increased emergency department visits for cannabis poisonings in children following legalization and is much higher compared to nonlegal states. In Virginia, the Blue Ridge Poison Control Center reports that minors overdosing on edible cannabis products have increased by 85% since Virginia legalized cannabis possession.

Intentional youth cannabis use has also increased in states and localities with legal retail markets. In New York City, instances of controlled substances and drug paraphernalia discovered on students in schools increased by 8% compared to 2019, despite a concurrent 11% decrease in the K-12 population. Data from the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration show that the five states with the highest youth marijuana use are also all states with legal retail cannabis. Cannabis commercialization and diminished cannabis enforcement have resulted in youth cannabis use increasing by 245% between 2000 and 2022, contrasting with declines in teen alcohol and tobacco use.

Medical studies show that individuals using cannabis at younger ages have a higher chance of developing more severe cannabis use disorder and persistent and uncontrollable substance use disorders. Research indicates that 11% of juveniles who consumed cannabis in 2023 and 21% of juveniles who consistently consumed cannabis for three years have developed cannabis use disorder.

Additionally, doctors at Boston Children's Hospital have reported an increase in children developing psychosis following cannabis use. Nearly one-third of adolescents attending checkups admit to using cannabis, and one-third of children who used cannabis and sought treatment reported hallucinations or paranoia.

Data suggest that marijuana use in adolescence can lead to other addictive behaviors in adulthood by reducing dopamine reactivity in the brain's reward regions, prompting users to seek a more potent product. The widespread availability of cannabis can compound this effect. The connection between daily cannabis use among children and long-term addiction has long-term consequences, considering research indicates that an estimated 6.5% of twelfth graders are daily cannabis users.

Treating children for cannabis-related issues, including lost intelligence, psychosis, and other mental health problems, is complex due to the acute and long-term effects of cannabis consumption. Stabilization and counseling are inadequate for treating cannabis use disorder in children, as evident by the limited effectiveness of counseling, and there are no medications available for treatment, resulting in long-term adverse health outcomes.

Medical experts and health professionals provided policymakers with information regarding the consequences of cannabis commercialization on Virginians' health during the General Assembly session. They emphasized that a retail marijuana marketplace creates a misconception that cannabis use is safe for minors, even though cannabis use leads to adverse mental health outcomes, increased anxiety and depression in minors, and impaired brain development.

II. The Failures of States with Legalized Retail Marijuana

States that have attempted to regulate the black-market for cannabis have generally failed. Colorado is touted as a successful example of legalization, but a decade after legalization, the illicit cannabis market still accounts for approximately 35% of all cannabis sales. Similarly, six years after legalization, California's legal cannabis market represented only about 10% of total cannabis sales. With the black-market's persistent pressure, gang activity escalates and violent crime surges.

Legal cannabis markets also do not guarantee product safety. In New York, which has legal cannabis markets, a study conducted by the New York Medical Cannabis Industry Association found that 40% of the cannabis products failed to meet required standards, including tests for E. Coli, salmonella, accurate THC, and heavy metals. Likewise, growers consistently evade state environmental regulations, labor standards, and product testing requirements in California, as reported by PBS News Hour.

Cannabis-induced disorder rates surged by 50% in November 2023 compared to 2019, attributed to intentional breeding for higher potency, a trend seen post-legalization, according to electronic health records. In Washington, post-legalization, cannabis extracts gained 150% market share, boasting nearly triple the potency of flower, prompting a reassessment of legalization's benefits by their legislature.

Moreover, the expectation that cannabis legalization will result in a meaningful net increase in state tax revenues has not materialized in states with legal markets. States with legal retail cannabis have been challenged in transitioning their existing, robust black-markets into legal, regulated, and taxed markets. As a result, their projected revenues have fallen short of expectations and forecasts.

According to an official Colorado state study, cannabis taxes have not solved budget shortfalls, and for every dollar of additional revenue generated, Coloradans spend approximately $4.50 to mitigate the effects of legalization. In addition to healthcare costs, the state also must contend with a lack of productivity in the economy, with research indicating that regular marijuana use increases the probability that a student will drop out of high school.

A 2023 analysis by the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City showed that cannabis legalization led to higher social costs without boosting tax revenue, resulting in increased consumption, substance use disorder, homelessness, and arrests, leaving state governments financially worse off.

III. Increase in Violent Crime, Psychiatric Disorders, and Decline in Safety

In 2021, cannabis use was estimated to be responsible for 10% of drug-related emergency department visits in the U.S., and it accounts for 11% of all psychosis cases in emergency rooms, totaling approximately 90,000 cases.

Cannabis contributes to a higher probability of users developing psychosis than other illicit drugs, according to the American Journal of Psychiatry. Cannabis-induced psychosis takes the form of perceptual alterations, hallucinations, and delusions.

Psychosis is a strong risk factor for violence. Schizophrenia resulting from cannabis-induced psychosis has significant public safety implications. People diagnosed with schizophrenia are five times as likely to commit violent crimes and are almost twenty times as likely to commit murder. Individuals with schizophrenia account for approximately 6% to 9% percent of murders.

Research also demonstrates that cannabis commercialization contributed to increased crime among all categories. Following cannabis legalization in Oregon, violent crime, property crime, larceny, aggravated assault, and burglary all increased significantly compared to other states that maintained laws against the commercial sale of marijuana.

The consensus from the leading medical journals, backed by extensive studies and research, indicates that cannabis is neither beneficial nor safe. The uniform experience of other states that have legalized retail cannabis is increased cannabis use, including among minors, increased THC potency, and increased crime.

In additional to increased gang and violent crime activity, there are also the effects of decreased public safety on our roads. In Colorado, after legalization, there was a 40% increase in fatal crashes where the driver tested positive only for THC. All marijuana-related traffic fatalities increased by 76.2%.

Law enforcement officials from across the Commonwealth have warned that this proposal poses a serious threat to public safety, attesting to increases in crime, arrests, and DUI incidents. Our local and state law enforcement agencies lack the necessary funding and staffing to effectively manage the emergence of a cannabis tourism industry, fueling an international drug trade dominated by organized crime.

IV. Virginia's Current Cannabis System

The current illegal cannabis market in Virginia is pervasive and dangerous.

Marijuana carries the same dangers as other drugs; the Commonwealth recognized this when it created a medical marijuana system. Opioids and other controlled substances are highly regulated and require the consultation of a medical provider to mitigate their negative consequences. Even with those protections in place, these drugs have had perverse and dangerous consequences for Virginians. The same is true for marijuana.

Attempting to rectify the error of decriminalizing marijuana by establishing a safe and regulated marketplace is an unachievable goal. The more prudent approach would be to revisit the issue of discrepancies in enforcement, not compounding the risks and endangering Virginians' health and safety with greater market availability.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

HOUSE BILL NO. 770

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 770 which allows a jury to order the reinstatement of an employee to a similar position following a retaliatory action.

Current law provides that a judge can order the reinstatement of an employee to a similar position or other forms of equitable relief after a verdict. Juries are, appropriately, defined as finders of fact that deliver verdicts, not remedies.

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 776

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 776, which amends the minimum qualifications for law-enforcement officers.

The bill is unnecessary as under current law allows the Department of Criminal Justice Services to issue a waiver for qualifications under § 15.2-1705, including the requirement that law-enforcement officers be citizens of the United States. Current DCJS practice is to issue waivers upon request of the law enforcement agency if the prospective employee is a legal permanent resident who is both eligible for and applied for citizenship.

Other waivers issued to the minimum qualification for law enforcement officers include those with alternative education backgrounds who have not received a high school diploma.

In its current form, this bill removes DCJS's ability to make waiver determinations on these other qualifications and may hinder law enforcement agency recruitment. With the existing waiver process in place, the legislative changes are unnecessary.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 797

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 797, which amends the requirements for concealed handgun permits.

This legislation prohibits recognized and widely accepted firearm safety and training courses from being valid for evidence of demonstrated competence in firearms safety for obtaining a concealed handgun permit or training minors in pneumatic gun use. Consequently, this change could compromise Virginians' safety and increase the likelihood of individuals circumventing these requirements.

This legislation would necessitate the Department of Criminal Justice Services (DCJS) to become the exclusive certifying agency for courses essential to prove competence for obtaining a concealed handgun permit. However, DCJS primarily serves as a criminal justice agency, and its firearm training and safety courses are tailored for that specific purpose, not addressing the broader needs of the general public. Additionally, the new requirements establish barriers to determining competency, introducing bureaucratic obstacles that impede an individual's right to self-defense.

This additional government approval process, funded by taxpayer dollars, is despite the established effectiveness of existing certifications currently available.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 798, relating to the purchase, possession, or transportation of a firearm following a misdemeanor conviction of assault and battery or stalking.

Individuals convicted of felonious assault and battery or subsequent instances of stalking already automatically lose their firearms rights.

Despite Virginians already having mechanisms in place for disarming individuals deemed dangerous, such as through protective orders, the proposed legislation seeks to remove a constitutional right for misdemeanor offenses.

HOUSE BILL NO. 799

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 799, which requires fingerprints to be submitted with an application for a concealed handgun permit or a renewal of such a permit.

This legislation targets individuals already subject to background checks and mandatory training, creating superfluous and onerous restrictions on responsible citizens exercising their Second Amendment right to self-defense. Despite an existing comprehensive instant background check system, this proposal would include an additional and redundant step in the concealed carry permit process.

Moreover, while the legislation mandates the destruction of fingerprints collected by the Commonwealth during the application process, the Federal Bureau of Investigation retains these fingerprints for the individual's lifetime. This record retention raises legitimate concerns regarding the privacy and civil liberties of those seeking to exercise their Second Amendment rights.

In 2012, in a bipartisan effort, the General Assembly repealed the local option to mandate fingerprints for a concealed handgun permit, recognizing the diminishing relevance of such requirements. This sensible shift is overshadowed in the current hyper-partisan climate, especially considering that concealed carry permit holders are known for being law-abiding citizens in the Commonwealth.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 805

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 805, which authorizes counties and cities to implement an increased sale and use tax rate for school construction.

School construction is a worthy cause, and Virginia has made significant progress. In 2022, the Budget supported more than three billion dollars in school construction projects through targeted assistance, formula-based school construction and modernization grants, and low-interest loans. This was achieved all while providing more than five billion dollars in tax relief.

This proposal could result in a nearly $1.5 billion a year tax increase on Virginians. Some localities would have a combined sales tax rate of eight percent, with no additional offsets, such as reduced income tax or property tax.

In addition, the revenues from this tax increase are entirely fungible. While the tax is dedicated to school capital costs, such as information technology, the new source of revenues would indirectly release funding for other purposes, supplanting other revenues without necessarily increasing education spending.

The proposed Common Ground budget supports a $1.2 billion increase K-12 appropriations over the biennium and makes available substantial construction loan and grant funding for school construction.

The Commonwealth should pursue a tax policy that unleashes economic development and prioritizes job and wage growth through innovative reforms. These reforms must allow hardworking Virginians to keep more of their money, not less; any proposal that increases the cost of living and the cost of business is not a policy we should pursue.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

HOUSE BILL NO. 938

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 938, which provides unemployment insurance benefits in the case of a lockout due to a labor dispute.

Virginia remains a right-to-work state, a status that this proposal would compromise.

Labor unions negotiate contracts with employers, and if negotiations fail, employers are permitted to hire replacements or lockout workers until a resolution is reached. During a lockout, employers cannot permanently replace workers, and workers may seek back pay through a National Labor Relations Board proceeding.

The proposal would involve the Virginia Employment Commission (VEC) in labor disputes for the first time by requiring it to determine eligibility for unemployment benefits during such a dispute. This would be a significant departure from current practices, potentially entangling the VEC in contentious issues.

Furthermore, unemployment benefits are funded through contributions to the Commonwealth's Unemployment Insurance Trust fund, with tax collections increasing when solvency is low. While this process is fair for rebuilding the Trust fund during economic downturns, allowing labor unions or a few employers to raise taxes on others is unjust for employers and employees.

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 939, which prohibits possession of a firearm within 100 feet of locations used for certain voting-related and elections-related activities.

Current law prohibits possessing a firearm within forty feet of the entrance to a polling place. Additionally, the act of brandishing a weapon is already a criminal offense.

This legislation proposes intricate time-and-place restrictions on carrying firearms, potentially turning law-abiding citizens into unintentional criminals if they are unaware of the presence of a ballot drop-off box or an electoral board meeting.

The expanded election-related restrictions would necessitate individuals to navigate around various locations permanently, regardless of their purpose in the area; moreover, on specific days and during designated hours, they would be obligated to avoid an extended list of locations to avoid legal consequences. These restrictions could be in effect for up to forty-five days in some years and one hundred thirty-five days or more in others.

HOUSE BILL NO. 972

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 972 which relates to immigration status disclosure during trials.

Deportation is a serious outcome for noncitizens convicted of crimes, however, the Court must absolutely have the right to inquire as to the immigration status of a defendant, as it is relevant information to the way the justice system should handle his or her case, including whether or not the defendant is a flight risk.

Courts must be able to inquire if an individual is in the country illegally as it can affect absconding potential and inform legal proceedings.

Establishes a precedent lacking a clear endpoint. In other contexts, a future General Assembly could use this proposal as the basis to prohibit inquiries into mental state to prevent civil commitments or restrict questions about military status to avoid dishonorable discharges. Such limitations on the information available to courts risk impeding their ability to adjudicate cases fairly and accurately, potentially resulting in severe consequences for those outside the courtroom.

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 974, which allows certain evidence for specific injuries arising from employment related to workers' compensation.

Current law provides a balanced approach to workers' compensation with claims adjudicated by the Virginia Workers' Compensation Commission in a timely and fair manner. This proposal, however, creates a disproportionate imbalance in favor of one party.

Under current law, to prove work-relatedness, injured workers must demonstrate that the injury resulted from something related to their employment and occurred during work hours and at the workplace. This proposal reduces the burden of proof for employees to demonstrate the work-relatedness of a fall incident.

Employees seeking workers' compensation for unexplained falls may rely on circumstantial evidence and hearsay; however, employers disputing the work-related aspect must provide direct evidence, disturbing the existing balance.

HOUSE BILL NO. 990

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 990, which prohibits employers from seeking the wage or salary history of prospective employees.

While I share concerns regarding wage inequality among women and minorities, the proposed legislation represents government overreach, offering incomplete information during the hiring process, disregarding business needs, and potentially exposing small businesses to lawsuits.

The Commonwealth's objective is to attract, retain, and expand job opportunities, and our laws should not burden or incur excessive costs compared to competitor states. Regulations should consider the overall business expenses, encompassing taxes, fees, insurance, and regulatory obligations, to foster a favorable business climate.

Employers often use candidates' salary history as a benchmark to ensure they offer competitive wages. Compensation decisions rely on various factors such as market value, funding constraints, and labor market competition. Gender or race are legally prohibited from influencing these decisions.

This legislation adopts a one-size-fits-all approach, disregarding the diverse nature of businesses across the Commonwealth spanning various sizes, industries, and geographic locations. While large corporations might navigate the new regulations, smaller companies or nonprofits lacking dedicated human resources departments would struggle, hindering their ability to evaluate candidates effectively.

Addressing wage disparities across gender and racial lines is imperative, but the potential adverse effects on small businesses, prospective employees, and the economy are too high.

Virginia's current law on tree canopy ordinances strikes a balance between the ability of a locality to hinder residential and commercial development with increased costs and the ability of a locality to preserve tree canopy.

This bill amends a second of code which allows localities within Planning District 8 who meet certain federal Clean Air Act standards to adopt a tree ordinance, other portions of the code allow any localities in the Chesapeake Bay Watershed or any locality with a population density of at least 75 persons per square mile to adopt such an ordinance. HOUSE BILL NO. 1174

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1174, relating to age requirements for purchasing or transferring certain firearms.

The proposed legislation prohibits any individual under the age of twenty-one from purchasing a handgun or assault firearm, two broad categories of commonly used firearms.

Of particular importance is the basic principle that the constitutionally protected right to possess a firearm is meaningless absent the right to purchase or otherwise acquire the firearm, a necessary corollary to the realization of rights guaranteed by the Second Amendment.

Recently, the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia ruled that a federal law prohibiting the sale of firearms to adults under the age of twenty-one would be found unconstitutional under the Supreme Court's ruling in Bruen. The Court stated, "[i]f the Court were to exclude 18-to-20-year-olds from the Second Amendment's protection, it would impose limitations on the Second Amendment that do not exist with other constitutional guarantee."

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1177, which requires the Commissioner of Elections to apply for, enter into, and maintain membership in the Electronic Registration Information Center.

The decision for the Commonwealth to exit the Electronic Registration Information Center (ERIC) in 2023 was a result of persistent management issues, improper data use, escalating costs, and the inability to meet statutory requirements for border state information sharing.

ERIC's reluctance to implement reforms and address a bipartisan working group of member states concerns reflects a departure from its core mission of improving voter roll accuracy, which called into question Virginia's continued participation.

This is particularly concerning due to the controversy surrounding ERIC's sharing of personal information with external organizations. These organizations are funded by sources that the General Assembly has on a bipartisan basis prohibited Virginia's election officials from accepting.

The financial burden of rejoining ERIC includes membership fees, which have increased more than 115% since 2022, and participation expenses. ERIC's mandatory Eligible but Unregistered mailing will cost the Commonwealth hundreds of thousands of dollars, which is superfluous considering Virginia's Department of Motor Vehicles' automatic registration policies and same-day registration for voting.

Since leaving ERIC, Virginia established data-sharing agreements with numerous states incurring no additional costs. Additionally, the Department of Elections has increased its data sources by collaborating with forty-one states to obtain driver's license surrender data, while ERIC only provides data sharing with twenty-five states.

I have been explicitly clear about my affirmation of the legitimacy of our elections. My focus is safeguarding Virginians' private information and continuously improving an efficient, cost-effective voter registration system.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA

March 14th, 2024

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 1178

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1178, which alters the current and future composition of the Virginia Innovation Partnership Authority.

In 2020, pivotal legislation consolidated disparate entities and bolstered the Commonwealth's capacity to drive innovation in the newly created Virginia Innovation Partnership Authority (VIPA). This restructuring aimed to leverage Virginia's unique strengths, combining the expertise of the Virginia Research Investment Committee and the Center for Innovative Technology. The result was a more robust framework to propel research, commercialization, and investment while instituting much-needed oversight.

This proposal would undo the recent achievements and efficiencies with additional bureaucratic layers, stifling the agility and dynamism of our entrepreneurship ecosystem. These changes risk eroding the confidence of stakeholders and investors.

Of particular concern is the provision that would upend VIPA's governance. The proposal, by abruptly ousting our nonlegislative citizen members from the Board of Directors, injects uncertainty for those willing to commit time and effort to serve the Commonwealth.

Even unenacted, the ramifications of this proposal signal to entrepreneurs and investors across Virginia that the very Authority meant to support them is entangled in political machinations. That is the wrong message to send when VIPA has made recent record investments in economically disadvantaged individuals, increased savings, and achieved national prominence in small business initiatives.

While collaboration with the General Assembly is essential for effective governance, the current proposal further diverges us from that goal.

Accordingly, I veto the bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 1190

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1190 which requires the Department of Professional and Occupational Regulations (DPOR) to create and administer certain Board of Contractors exams in any language that election materials are printed in.

This mandate would add cumbersome changes to the administration of these exams as it would be necessary for the test proctors to be proficient in these languages and require accurate translations of resource material and publications. These costs would be passed onto applicants through higher licensing fees.

Considering that current non-English exams are utilized for less than five percent of applicants, this bill could raise costs on applicants with minimal public benefit.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

H.B. 1195 (eleven, ninety-five) was taken up.

The communication from the Governor was as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA
Office of the Governor
March 26, 2024

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 1195

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1195, which requires a waiting period to purchase a firearm.

The proposed waiting periods would impede individuals facing threats of violence from promptly acquiring a firearm for self-defense.

Virginia's existing background check ensures that individuals prohibited by State or Federal law cannot legally access firearms. The Virginia State Police use federal and state records and databases, including the Central Criminal Records Exchange, one of the most complete records repositories in the nation.

My commitment to enhancing mental health services is steadfast, reflected in my efforts and record funding to finalize long-neglected mental health systems. These initiatives aim to assist those undergoing mental health crises when an individual needs it most, a reform that is proven to save lives.

The federal Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act of 1993 initially implemented a five-day waiting period between handgun application and sale completion before being found to be unconstitutional.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

H.B. 1207 (twelve, naught, seven) was taken up.

The communication from the Governor was as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA
Office of the Governor
April 8, 2024

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 1207

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1207, which requires the Commonwealth to develop an affordable housing criminal record screening model policy.

This bill, in practical effect, prohibits an affordable housing provider from inquiring about, requiring disclosure of, or rejecting a housing application based on an applicant's criminal or arrest record unless the provider does so according to such model policy. Further, rental applicants are currently protected by existing fair housing laws related to criminal convictions. Historically, housing providers participating in federal affordable housing programs have been permitted to deny an applicant on the basis of a criminal background check. This bill could make Virginia's affordable housing policy inconsistent with what is accepted under federal law and may dissuade housing providers from participating in affordable housing programs.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

H.B. 1244 (twelve, forty-four) was taken up.

The communication from the Governor was as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA
Office of the Governor
March 27th, 2024

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 1244

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1244, which regulates the use of restorative housing.

During the 2023 legislative session, the General Assembly came together in a bipartisan manner to enact reforms to improve the Department of Corrections' utilization of restorative housing. I supported and signed that legislation, which has since been implemented by the Department, bringing in best practices that have proven beneficial for correction officers and inmates.

These reforms represent the culmination of significant efforts by the Department, positioning us as a national leader in correctional innovation. The Department remains committed to developing new programs and fostering collaboration with diverse voices and stakeholders.

Central to the agency's mission is reentry and long-term public safety, guided by data-driven decision-making and evidence-based practices. The restorative housing program, operating within these principles, stands as a component to ensure safety and security for both inmates and staff.

The new definitions and regulations provided in this proposal pose challenges to the continued success of these reforms. Designating mental health units as isolated confinement without consideration for the informed judgment of mental health professionals undermines effective prison management. Furthermore, imposing arbitrary timeframes for stays in restorative housing, including investigation time, restricts the staff's ability to maintain order and security.

Attempting to legislate prison operational procedures carries inherent risks to inmates, staff, and the public. Corrections professionals are entrusted with oversight for a reason, as they must balance multiple interests while ensuring safety. Congregating individuals without proper management protocols is not a viable solution.

Additionally, I have concerns regarding the budgetary implications of implementing this proposal. The allocated resources in the proposed Budget may not adequately cover the costs, potentially diverting funding from vital reentry programs and initiatives to reduce recidivism. Additionally, the proposal introduces unnecessary bureaucracy for facility administrators, detracting from the Department's ability to prioritize safety and inmate rehabilitation.

While I remain committed to fostering a correctional system that prioritizes the safety of all stakeholders, including everyday Virginians, inmates, and correctional officers, I do not believe it is currently prudent to proceed with this proposal. My signature on the bipartisan reforms of 2023, the establishment of a Department of Corrections Ombudsman in the Budget, and my continued support for new leadership within the Department underscore my dedication to this cause.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

HOUSE BILL NO. 1251

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1251, which permits tenants to be delinquent on their rent prior to filing a tenant's assertion.

This bill creates an unbalanced legal environment by applying separate standards to providers, who must continue to comply with a rental agreement, and tenants, who would not.

Many small housing providers depend on regular rent payments to satisfy their obligations, including to lenders. By allowing tenants to withhold rent, this bill may make housing providers unable to properly and timely meet those obligations, which could cause cascading negative consequences.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 1252

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1252, which requires courts to release defendants being held for a probation violation under certain circumstances.

This bill's requirements would put Virginia law at odds with the Interstate Compact for Adult Offender Supervision, which governs probation violation release timeframes across all state governments.

The bill also mandates that offenders be held for probation violations after fourteen days, even if they were a flight risk or likely to re-offend based on past behavior. The fourteen-day timeframe is insufficient for attorneys to collect and present evidence on whether the offender should be released or remain in custody.

In addition, this bill uses technical terms without clear definitions, creating uncertainty for courts when determining probation violations or releasing offenders. Consequently, disparate outcomes may arise based on individual judges' interpretations.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

HOUSE BILL NO. 1264

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1264, which relates to juvenile fines, costs, and fees for traffic infractions.

The bill proposes specific provisions regarding fee determination for legal representation and potential waivers based on financial circumstances, largely duplicating the court's existing discretion in these matters.

Ultimately, the bill undermines public safety by sending the wrong message about accountability and responsibility among young offenders.

Accordingly, I veto the bill.

HOUSE BILL NO. 1386

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1386, which restricts localities' ability to adopt workplace rules for firearms.

Localities can currently adopt these provisions if they choose, and the existing process allows localities to account for the numerous variations in Virginia's diverse geographic, cultural, and societal norms across different regions of the Commonwealth or the unique situations of fire marshals, school security officers, judges, or Commonwealth attorneys.

The proposal undermines localities' ability to adopt workplace rules based on the best interests of their employees in specific workplaces.

HOUSE BILL NO. 1398

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1398, which grants localities a right of first refusal for affordable housing program participation changes and sales.

This bill would allow a locality the right to purchase affordable housing properties after the property owner has accepted an offer from a private party to sell it. A locality is also authorized to transfer this right to another private party that may be a competitor to the initial prospective purchaser. This bill would allow a locality to arbitrarily interfere in the private market and pick winners and losers.

HOUSE BILL NO. 1420

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1420, which establishes the age of a delinquent child.

Although this bill purports to protect juveniles under eleven by preventing them from being charged with delinquency, some youth under age eleven who might otherwise receive delinquency adjudication for an offense may lose access to Department of Juvenile Justice funding for mental health and counseling services, following a delinquency determination.

Additionally, a court would lose the ability to require restitution that could benefit victims of acts committed by children under eleven.

Finally, the proposal serves as an additional incentive for criminal street gangs to continue the heinous practice of recruiting children younger than eleven years old to carry out gang-related offenses.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

This bill removes the requirement that driver privilege cards have printed restrictions identical to limited duration licenses, which indicate that the card is valid only for a limited period This information is used to distinguish between legal and non-legal resident IDs.

This bill would also enable a person permitted by the Federal government to be in the United States for a limited duration to obtain a Virginia Driver's license for a full eight-year term even though their eligibility to be legally present here may have expired.

The proposal penalizes law-abiding Virginians for leaving a firearm in their vehicle, regardless of any other circumstances, punishing victims of crimes committed by another individual.

The culpability is on the criminal who stole the firearm. The Commonwealth should prioritize prosecution and severe punishment for individuals who commit crimes.

HOUSE BILL NO. 1467

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1467, which adds faculty and staff representatives to the governing boards of baccalaureate public institutions of higher education in the Commonwealth.

Our esteemed public higher education institutions uphold the Commonwealth's commitment to education, overseen by Boards of Visitors endowed with broad statutory powers to regulate academic and financial affairs. The Boards of Visitors hire employees to fulfill their duty to the people.

The Restructured Higher Education Financial and Administrative Operations Act of 2005 granted public colleges and universities increased operational and administrative autonomy in exchange for a reaffirmed dedication to their public missions. The proposal mandates the inclusion of faculty and staff representatives within our Boards of Visitors, in contrast to that dedication.

There are Boards of Visitors that oversee budgets that exceed one billion dollars, requiring judicious investments and adjustments, including assessments of staffing levels. Unfortunately, the proposal will diminish the opportunities for cost efficiencies, resulting in higher tuition and increased expenses for hardworking Virginia families.

The proposal would also exclude these representatives from General Assembly confirmation, subject only to an internal selection process, and they would be beyond the Governor's authority for removal due to misconduct, solely accountable to their peers.

Boards of Visitors "do not exist for their own sake or that of any particular institution but for the benefit of the public at large" (2023 Op. Va Att'y Gen. 52). Their governance should follow their public role, with members appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the General Assembly rather than by unelected faculty or staff.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

HOUSE BILL NO. 1515

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1515, which mandates Commonwealth Attorneys to provide discovery material electronically.

While the bill aims to establish a commendable goal of a universal statewide electronic discovery system, the current state of information technology infrastructure across the Commonwealth significantly challenges achieving this objective.

The Commonwealth should first coordinate and fund information technology solutions for Commonwealth Attorneys' offices. Technology requirements and financial support have traditionally been a local government concern, resulting in a balkanized patchwork of incompatible information technology systems across offices.

To provide context, some offices still rely on typewriters due to limited digital infrastructure, while others struggle with digital file management and lack server space and personnel to handle electronic data. The best course of action would be first to investigate and understand the scope of the difficulties before imposing a statewide electronic discovery mandate.

The proposal requires the Commonwealth to operate without first understanding the information technology infrastructure and necessary resources, creating an enormous unfunded mandate for localities.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

HOUSE BILL NO. 1539

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 1539, which prohibits extradition for certain crimes.

This bill is aimed at medical professionals from other states who may be in Virginia and subject to an extradition.

The extradition process among the states has a long and successful history within an established legal framework required by the U.S. Constitution. This bill would undermine that framework and disrupt the extradition laws in all fifty states. Our cooperative extradition system could collapse if individual states were to carve out crimes for which they would not recognize codified laws because of differing political positions.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Speaker of the House of Delegates

Clerk of the House of Delegates

FRIDAY, MAY 17, 2024

The following House bills, with communications thereto, were vetoed by the Governor:

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA
Office of the Governor
May 17, 2024

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 173

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 173, which establishes a felony for knowingly possessing certain firearms or materials.

In the 2024 Session of the General Assembly, Senate Bill 363 was enacted with my recommendations, representing a bipartisan effort to address the issue of ghost guns.

This proposal would create confusing changes that could affect not only gun owners but also others who have industrial parts such as aluminum, which, if sold to the public to become a frame or receiver once completed, must be serialized under this bill.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

COMMONWEALTH OF VIRGINIA
Office of the Governor

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 187

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 187, which relates to teacher compensation.

I support the goal of ensuring that teachers and state-funded education support positions are funded competitively. I am proud of the pay increases the General Assembly and I have already enacted. On a bipartisan basis, Virginia has championed teacher pay increases, investing $1.6 billion to grow teacher salaries by 23% since 2021.

Due to this bipartisan commitment across multiple budgets, Virginia's average teacher pay was already projected to exceed the national average this fiscal year. This was thanks to the 7% increase enacted in September 2023. The additional 6% increase (3% per year) included in the budget signed on May 13, 2024, represents a $540 million investment in teachers that will maintain Virginia's competitive position for teacher compensation.

The proposed legislation grants the ability to determine spending in the upcoming budget to the National Education Association (NEA), an unelected labor union, restricting the Governor's ability as chief budget officer, a responsibility established by the General Assembly over a century ago. The bill also fails to account for various scenarios, such as an economic downturn or a state of emergency. This could impede the Commonwealth's flexibility to provide a Budget that is in the best interest of the Commonwealth and its citizens.

Additionally, the NEA's method does not accurately reflect the complete picture of teacher compensation in the Commonwealth of Virginia, and deviates from that developed by the Virginia Department of Education. NEA's methodology includes substitute teacher compensation and fails to account for supplemental salary expenditures in determining teacher compensation. Consistent, annual reporting of accurate teacher compensation data is essential for lawmakers and the Governor to make sound decisions.

While data sources and calculation methodologies differ, one truth remains the same – Virginia has made great strides increasing teacher compensation. The Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission's March 2024 letter to the chairs of the Senate Finance and Appropriations Committee and House Appropriations Committee cites "recent progress on increasing state finding for teacher salaries" in the FY23 and FY24 budgets.

I offered an amendment that would have restored the legislation to a version that passed the Senate of Virginia unanimously and would have informed further teacher pay increases through a detailed annual teacher compensation review. Unfortunately, the General Assembly failed to adopt my recommendation.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 224

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 224 which adjusts existing training requirements for teachers and relevant school personnel.

Code of Virginia § 22.1-298.6 already directs that each school board shall adopt and implement policies that require each teacher and other relevant full-time personnel to complete a mental health awareness training or similar program at least once.

The Board of Education adopted the revised Suicide Prevention Guidelines for Virginia Public Schools in 2020, which includes many of the proposal's provisions but goes further than the groups designated in the legislation. Unfortunately, the legislature failed to accept my amendment, which would have reverted to the more robust guidelines issued by the Board of Education.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Sincerely,
/s/ Glenn Youngkin

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 246

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 246, which mandates clerks of courts to furnish itemized statements of fines and fees to individuals convicted of crimes.

While I agree with the general purpose of the legislation, regrettably, the General Assembly did not approve my amendments. These recommendations would have introduced practical clarifications, including the requirement for written requests, a nominal fee to support the Clerk's office in their new duty, and a specified delivery method for the itemized statements.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 416, which would amend Virginia Beach's charter to establish a city council with only single-member districts and a mayor.

Given the pending litigation concerning the validity of the adopted district system in Virginia Beach, it is prudent to allow the courts to adjudicate on the correctness of the implementation, with the expectation that this legislation will be re-introduced once the court's adjudication has been finalized.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

HOUSE BILL NO. 498

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 498, which relates to school boards notifying parents about information related to firearms.

This proposed legislation is unnecessary for responsible parents and ineffective in persuading the irresponsible.

The General Assembly failed to adopt my amendments, which would prioritize informing parents of their rights, such as the fundamental right to make decisions concerning the upbringing, education, and care of their child.

The legislation has a singular focus on one parental responsibility, which applies to a subset of parents, omitting other legal obligations, like providing an environment free of abuse, neglect, and exploitation. This relegates such a duty to second-tier status.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

HOUSE BILL NO. 536

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 536 which amends the statutory definition of bullying and could cause confusion for teachers and school administrators by excluding some groups.

While I agree with the general purpose of the legislation, regrettably, the General Assembly did not approve my amendments. Those recommendations would have expanded the definition of bullying to encompass all possible motives.

School administrators must work to prevent bullying and support our students' mental health through a healthy learning environment, but the narrow definition provided in the legislation could be interpreted to exclude groups not included in the Virginia Human Rights Act, such as bullying victims raised with traditional values or those who are in foster care.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

TO: HOUSE OF DELEGATES
HOUSE BILL NO. 568

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 568, eliminating tax exemptions for specific organizations.

The Commonwealth should pass necessary reforms regarding exemptions from local property and recordation taxes.

Historically, the Constitution of Virginia permitted the General Assembly to grant exemptions from local taxation to specific nonprofit organizations through classification or designation, with a three-fourths vote in each house. In 2003, a constitutional amendment altered the process to ordinance-based exemptions, but those established before January 1, 2003, remained in force.

The property tax exemption by designation is ripe for reform, delineated by inconsistencies and discrepancies. Specific civic associations and for-profit businesses are exempted, while others are not. Among these groups, some organizations have titles offensive in contemporary discourse, such as outdated references to the intellectually or developmentally disabled; some organizations reference political affiliations and engage in political contributions like the Ocean View Democratic and Social Club, and others are historical societies whose lineage is connected to contentious periods such as the Civil War, illustrated by the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

A more effective approach to reform would involve broad-based measures, allowing local governments autonomy in determining tax exemptions and considering the locality's tax base and deed transfers. These considerations would be permitted when a county or city sets its real estate tax levy, helping to reduce effective tax increases through assessments.

Narrowly targeting specific organizations to gain or lose such tax exemptions sets an inappropriate precedent. Initially, the General Assembly granted exemptions through a three-quarter vote of both houses, but now, a simple majority can revoke them. Choosing winners and losers is imprudent and undermines the tax system's fairness.

Unfortunately, the General Assembly rejected my recommendations, which would have accomplished broad-based reform to address the issue of tax exemptions effectively.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

The circumstances contemplated by this bill can be dire for both tenants and housing providers.

Consequently, this bill was recommended for study at the Department of Housing and Community Development to ensure respective changes to the Code of Virginia represented the best interests of both parties.

HOUSE BILL NO. 597

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 597, which provides enforcement of the Virginia Residential Landlord and Tenant Act (VRLTA) by localities.

The proposal is nearly identical to House Bill 802 which I vetoed in the 2022 General Assembly Session, and my concerns persist.

The legislation contains unnecessary and duplicative provisions, already established under the Virginia Uniform Statewide Building Code (USBC). The existing USBC powers provide enforcement authority to localities to enforce the USBC against both the landlord and the tenant, whereas House Bill 597 proposes only to provide localities powers to enforce the VRLTA against the landlord.

Under the USBC and the VRLTA, landlords and tenants both have responsibilities to maintain safe, decent, and sanitary housing.

It is neither clear why this language is necessary to enforce already existing provisions of state law, nor what the additional language contained in the legislation seeks to accomplish beyond what is already authorized in the USBC.

Landlords should be held accountable for creating unsafe and hazardous living conditions for their tenants. The current Building Code regulations and the implementing regulations, 13VAC5-63-485, already address the policy objective of the underlying legislation.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6, of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 609, which creates an overly broad cause of action against political subdivisions and parents, as well as medical professionals acting in their expert judgment and within their scope of practice, fails to include adequate conscience clause protections for providers and also undermines the fundamental right of parents to make decisions concerning their children's upbringing and care.

I support contraception access. Of course, there is no question today that access is protected under the Constitution as laid out in Griswold v. Connecticut, 381 U.S. 479 (1965) and Eisenstadt v. Baird, 405 U.S. 438 (1972). Quality health care for women is essential and contraception remains a crucial component of reducing abortions and fostering a culture of life, making Virginia the best place to raise a family. As the issue continues to be deliberated by the legislature, and recognizing the diverse religious, ethical, and moral beliefs of Virginians, any contraception-related changes must be coupled with robust conscience clause protections for providers and also must uphold the fundamental right of parents to make decisions concerning their children's upbringing and care.

HOUSE BILL NO. 624

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 624, which makes significant changes to education funding.

On May 13, 2024, the General Assembly adopted, and I signed, a budget making the largest investment in the history of the Commonwealth in direct aid to K-12 education: $21.6 billion over two years. This is a nearly 10% increase over the previous biennium which set a record at the time. Virginia's funding to meet our commitment to high-quality education has increased by 51 percent, from $14 billion to nearly $22 billion, since 2019.

Notwithstanding the $7.2 billion increase in K-12 funding since 2019, there are legitimate questions raised by many parties in state and local government about the efficacy of the formula we use to fund education, and whether that formula successfully drives our taxpayer dollars to students in the classroom.

Regrettably, the General Assembly failed to adopt my amendments to this legislation.

These recommendations would have added a re-enactment clause and directed the Department of Education to work with the Joint Subcommittee on Elementary and Secondary Education Funding to assess the effects of changing the at-risk student proxy and eliminating the Standards of Quality Prevention, Intervention, and Remediation program on school division funding and other Direct Aid accounts.

Chapter 1 of the 2023 Special Session I Acts of Assembly established a Joint Subcommittee of 10 members from the Senate Finance and Appropriations Committee and the House Appropriations Committee, charged with a comprehensive review of the Commonwealth's funding formula to meet the Standards of Quality for Education (SOQ), and to review the recommendations of the July 2023 JLARC report. The Subcommittee is tasked with reporting on new funding models and implementation plans by November 1, 2024.

Before further action on the funding formula can be changed statutorily, the Commonwealth needs an effective K-12 funding formula that should account for the specific needs of the students and, ultimately, the school divisions. This approach should allow school divisions to optimize budgets and personalize learning experiences.

Accordingly, I veto this bill.

HOUSE BILL NO. 812

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 812, which prohibits the issuance of certain license plates issued by the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The Department of Motor Vehicles (the Department) offers over three hundred different types of specialty plates. The spectrum of special interest plates spans from expressions of regional support, such as for the Northern Neck or the City of Fairfax, to more personalized affiliations like favorite musicians or sports teams and even to endorsements of private businesses.

The Department also offers specialty plates for debated social issues, such as advocacy for fox hunting, coal, or internet infrastructure. In some instances, the plates represent overtly political statements, including pro-abortion, pro-life, for and against the Second Amendment, and even international relations concerning Tibet.

Some of these plates may be offensive and controversial to some, but the Department oversees a neutral and impartial process for their approval and issuance, with ultimate approval by the legislature. This process ensures that all viewpoints are considered and that no one interest dominates.

These plates are not endorsements by the Commonwealth.

Unfortunately, the General Assembly failed to adopt my amendments, which would have set in motion a process to establish a uniform schedule for the expiration of acts establishing special license plates.

Current law prohibits firearms in state-owned or operated hospitals prohibiting firearms or explosives on-premises, while private hospitals already possess the authority to ban firearms, with violators subject to trespassing penalties.

The proposal, however, removes a hospital's discretion to permit employees to carry stun guns for safety. HOUSE BILL NO. 904

Pursuant to Article V, Section 6 of the Constitution of Virginia, I veto House Bill 904, which makes multiple changes to the Department of Elections' list maintenance practices.

To be clear, elections in Virginia remain safe and secure. While I agree with the general purpose of addressing these list maintenance practices, the General Assembly did not approve my amendments, which would have allowed a workgroup to properly study and make recommendations regarding voter registration and list maintenance.

Secure elections start with comprehensive list maintenance practices. Interagency exchange of data is a vital component of election administration in the Commonwealth. Transparency and interagency collaboration are essential to ensuring that every eligible Virginian can exercise their right to vote and know that the list of registered voters is accurate and up to date.

Updating and maintaining the Commonwealth's voter registration has seen many improvements over the last two years. The Commonwealth has made unprecedented strides in improving the accuracy of its voter list through audits of all list maintenance practices. As a result, Virginia has been nationally recognized for its robust list maintenance improvements and new initiatives.

The continued improvement of the Commonwealth's list maintenance processes is largely contingent upon the interagency data provided to the Department of Elections for processing. As Virginia transitions to a new statewide voter registration system targeted for delivery next year, and given the fact there is a shared responsibility held not only by the Department of Elections but all the other entities within the Commonwealth that provide data, a workgroup to properly study these changes is necessary.

Introduction to Indexes of the Journal of the House of Delegates

The Journal of the House of Delegates is a compilation of proceedings and information related to a specific session of the General Assembly, focusing on items relevant to introduced legislation and actions by members of the House of Delegates, the legislature, and the Governor. The Subject Index offers page number references for easy access to motions and requests on specific legislative items including those directly attributable to a Delegate. The "Bills and Resolutions" category provides a breakdown of Journal day entries that encompasses the legislative process from introduction to enactment. The "Motions and Requests" category is a breakdown of every motion made by a member or every request for action allowed pursuant to member privilege. Parliamentary inquiries and points of order are set out in the Subject Index under those specific categories and noted by member. The Speaker's statements and rulings are found under "Speaker of the House of Delegates [Don Scott]."

The Numerical Index is a list of bills and resolutions in numerical order with entries that provides Journal page number references to specific legislative actions that occurred on the House floor. This Index is useful in tracking an identified piece of legislation from introduction to final disposition.
